DAVEY CLAIMS BRADLEY TRIED TO FRAME LONG

Governor Says Graft Witness 'Had Something On' Huey, and Planned Scheme.

ASKED ABOUT TELEGRAMS

Executive Denies He Saw Sen. Robinson to Get Business From U. S. Government.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Gov. Martin L. Davey, chief witness in the perjury hearing for Lee Bradley, testified today that Bradley tried to "frame" the late Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana in 1933.

The reference to Long came while Gov. Davey was being cross examined by Bradley's counsel, Marvin C. Harrison. The hearing is on a perjury affidavit filed by the governor, charging that Bradley testified falsely during the recent Ohio senate graft inquiry that he solicited campaign funds for Davey in 1934.

Refers to Telegram.

Harrison referred to a telegram from Washington, sent by Davey to Bradley, date April 12, 1933, and reading: "Saw Robinson today. Rather interested. He may write or phone."

"Who is the Robinson there referred to?" Harrison asked.

"Bradley said he had something on Huey Long," Gov. Davey replied. "There was a fight between Senator Robinson and Huey Long and Bradley wanted to go down there and frame Huey."

"When did you learn about the fact that someone was going to be framed?"

"I didn't learn from anyone. I judge from what I have learned of the man since."

"Then the only purpose you had in seeing Sen. Robinson was the Huey Long matter?"

"So far as I know."

Harrison read from a letter written by Bradley in Cleveland to Davey in Washington referring to contracts Davey had made with Sen. Robinson.

"Wasn't this an attempt to get business?" Harrison asked.

"No, as I recall it, Bradley wanted to see Robinson, and I happened to be in Washington and saw Robinson."

Asked About Letter.

"Will you say under oath that this wasn't an attempt to get business and was only on the Huey Long matter?"

ALARM GROWS

Father of Kidnaped Boy Says 'We're Waiting, Hoping.'

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—For the first time since 12-year-old Peter Levine disappeared more than two weeks ago, there was despair in the voice of his father today as he reported: "There isn't anything new—we're just waiting and hoping."

Offered facilities of newspapers to repeat his ransom offer he said "Thank you—no."

Cites Crime File In Plea For More Men

Bates Arming Self for Council Session, Says 453 Cases Unsolved.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today had compiled a list of unsolved police cases, extending back over the last two years, and will submit his list to the council's finance committee as one of the principal shots in his campaign to obtain more men for the police force.

In a letter to council recently, Bates asked for funds to add five men to the force.

Bates said his report would show 453 cases in police files marked "unsolved," and added that the money lost would approximate $20,000. None of the cases goes farther back than two years.

Safe Jobs Head List.

Among them are the safe-cracking at the Pure Oil bulk station on Newman street and the Sears Roebuck safe robbery, in which the burglars carried the safe right out of the building. It was recovered, empty, the next morning in a schoolyard near Shelby.

Bates will tell council that if the police force were increased according to his recommendations, many of these cases might be solved.

"There are at least seven important cases in the files that we have been unable to clean up because of the lack of men to follow up leads," Bates said today. "In addition to these cases, there are 58 burglaries over the past two years which have never been solved.

Bates said the department could cut the $20,000 loss figure in half within a year's time if council would approve funds for additional men.

If council approves his request, Bates plans to set up a 24-hour traffic detail, and add two more plain clothes men. He said traffic control would be improved remarkably with a larger police detail to handle it.

Bates is also seeking to have pressure exerted on council from another source to win approval of his program. He has written letters to various civic organizations in the city, asking them to adopt a formal resolution approving his request and send it to city council. In his letters, he also asks individual members of the organizations to call their ward councilmen and express themselves in favor of the departmental increase.

WON'T FIGHT

12 Per Cent of Nation's Youth Would Refuse, Survey Says.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A survey just completed by the American youth commission indicated today that 12 per cent of the nation's young men would refuse to fight in event of any kind of a war.

"Sixty per cent of more than 13,000 young people of both sexes said they thought war 'needless and preventable'," the commission reported.

Of the 6,832 boys interviewed, 35 per cent said they would volunteer for war, 31 per cent would go if drafted, 10 per cent would fight only in event of invasion threatened, 12 per cent would refuse to fight at all, seven per cent would take "other action," and four per cent were uncertain.

AUDITS BOOKS

Examiner Checking $45,875 Shortage at Bank in Hillsboro.

HILLSBORO—(AP)—National Bank Examiner C. E. Underwood worked over records three and four years old today to get complete facts about a $45,875 shortage in savings accounts of the Farmers & Traders National bank.

C. T. Perin, vice president, disclosed that a trusted employe had given the board of directors a statement accepting "full responsibility."

10 DAYS AWAY!

Spring Arrives Soon, Prelude's Due Tomorrow.

A prelude to spring, which arrives in 10 days, will bring fair and warmer weather to the Mansfield area tonight and Saturday, the weatherman predicted today.

Repeating yesterday's performance, the sun made quick work of a light snow that fell this morning.

Thomas J. Mooney is seen in this dramatic picture as he addressed the assembly of the California legislature at Sacramento, yesterday, and made a plea for freedom.

GREEN FIGHTS IN CIO STRONGHOLD

Tells Miners Lewis 'Loaned' or Donated $1,400,000 In Mine Union Dues.

(By International News Service)

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, carried his fight with the CIO into John L. Lewis' stronghold today with the avowed intention of bringing to the miners "the right to elect their own officers."

The declaration, made during his address at a mass meeting of laborites, was seen as the first move of a drive to raid the ranks of the United Mine Workers of America for members.

"I say to you," Green shouted, "that the CIO would collapse in 24 hours if the United Mine Workers would stop financing it."

He charged that more than $1,400,000 had been either "loaned" by Lewis to other CIO affiliates or had been donated to the Democratic national committee.

"You'd think for that they'd at least give miners the right to elect their own officers," Green declared. "Are they too dumb to have that right? They are not too dumb to pay dues. During the last political campaign they were ask to vote for certain political candidates. If they are intelligent enough to vote for the state's executive officer, they ought to be smart enough to elect their own district officers."

District officers of the Mine Workers now are appointed by Lewis.

PAVES WAY FOR POWER CO-OPS

Huron Unit to Buy Electricity From Norwalk City Plant.

With the signing of a contract today with the Norwalk City light plant, the way was paved for construction of 230 miles of rural electric lines in Richland, Huron and Ashland counties, International News Service dispatches from Norwalk said.

The contract was closed by the Huron County Electric co-operative, an R.E.A. branch, and provides power for farm homes at approximately one and one-half cents per kilowatt.

Mooney Loses By 3 Votes In New Move For Pardon

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(AP)—Tom Mooney's dramatic fight before the state assembly to win a legislative pardon failed today.

A unique bill to free Mooney from San Quentin prison, where he is serving a life term for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing which killed 10 and injured 40 people, met the same fate as every other attempt in his 21-year fight for vindication.

After hearing Mooney himself repeat his oft-told story that he was "framed," the assembly voted 39 to 35 to free him but that was two votes short of the necessary majority of 80 members. Since two assemblymen have died there actually are only 78 members but the speaker ruled 41 was necessary for a majority.

OK'S ARNOLD

Senate Sub-Committee Favors 'Trust Buster' Selection

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A senate judiciary subcommittee approved today the nomination of Thurman W. Arnold to be assistant attorney general in charge of the justice department's anti-trust division.

There were no votes against Arnold, but Senators Borah (R-Ida-ho) and Burke (D-Neb.) refrained from balloting. Senators Norris (Ind-Neb), Neely (D-W. Va.) and O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) voted in favor of the nomination.

Borah and Burke said they were withholding their votes to consider the nomination further. They will be entitled to vote again when the nomination is considered by the full judiciary subcommittee.

VERDICT DUE

Decision Expected Tonight in Moscow Treason Trial.

MOSCOW—(INS)—A verdict in the Moscow treason trial is expected tonight in order to permit the Soviet union to "celebrate" the result tomorrow, an official rest day.

An open hearing was to be conducted today following yesterday's secret session of the trial, in which 21 former Bolshevik leaders are on trial for their lives.

PLANE VICTIM BURIED TODAY

Services for Student Pilot Held; Gages Rites at Church Tomorrow.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Theodore Crum, who was killed to his death with his flying instructor, Glenn Gages, when the latter's training plane crashed in a field four miles west of the city late Wednesday.

The body will be taken to Huntington, W. Va., for burial, where Crum lived before coming to Mansfield seven years ago.

Services for Gages will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the First Lutheran church, conducted by Rev. R. A. Hall of the Ontario Community church, assisted by Rev. G. E. Swoyer, First Lutheran pastor. Burial will be in the Memorial Park cemetery.

Students and fellow fliers of Gages will act as pallbearers. They will be Emil Sziraki, Samuel J. Gentille, Paul Gimble, Richard Martin, Jack McLaughlin and Joseph Gansenberger.

The two men were killed as the monoplane in which Gages had been giving Crum instructions crashed from an altitude of 2,000 feet as the motor stalled.

Meanwhile the findings of William Robertson, Cleveland, inspector for the department of air commerce, who investigated the crash yesterday, was en route to Washington, D. C. Robertson said he was not permitted to make public his report.

SEEKS DELAY IN SPARKS HEARING

State to Ask Postponement of Mandamus Action.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A. F. O'Neill, first assistant attorney general, said today he expected to ask for a two weeks' continuance Monday of the mandamus suit of Harry A. Sparks, who is seeking to regain his job as highway department bituminous engineer.

O'Neill said that two witnesses expected to testify in behalf of State Highway Director John J. Jaster were ill.

Jaster abolished Sparks' position on orders of Gov. Martin L. Davey after the engineer testified before the senate investigating committee.

Rainer, Tracy Win 'Oscars' For 1937's Best Films

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Spencer Tracy, a likeable mug from Milwaukee, and Luise Rainer, a shy Austrian brunet, were hailed today as the No. 1 stars of the 1937 film year.

Seventeen gold statuettes, the "Oscars" symbolic of outstanding achievement in the industry, were passed out last night by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The two that counted most—for the best acting—went to Tracy and Miss Rainer.

Recovering at a hospital from an operation, Tracy got the news from his wife that his characterization of a Portuguese sailor in "Captains Courageous" had been rewarded.

Miss Rainer was present at the academy banquet when it was announced she had won a statuette for her Chinese peasant role in "The Good Earth."

WHO'S WHO IN RELIEF STILL BIG PROBLEM

County to Drop Responsibility Tuesday—City Makes No Move to Accept Load.

AWAITS 'OFFICIAL NOTICE'

Step Taken by Commissioners at State's Request Puts Situation Up In Air.

The relief situation in Richland county was hanging between the courthouse and the city building today, with neither the city nor the county willing to accept the responsibility after March 15.

County commissioners two days ago dissolved the county relief setup as it has been operated for the past two years, effective next Tuesday, turing the care of needy families back to Mansfield, Shelby and Madison township. The move was made on a request from the state auditor.

Says City Not Notified.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said today that the city had received no official notification from the county that the shift had been made and there would be no preparations to take over relief until "the city knows where it stands."

Madison township trustees, who are faced with the task of hiring relief investigators and caring for relief families, had the biggest problem on their hands. They are not permitted by the state to employ a relief administrator.

Only Shelby, which has a negligible relief burden, has started preparations to assume the load. Mayor D. Bruce Young has called a meeting of council for Monday night to work out a plan for handling the city's relief costs. Last month Shelby had 64 relief cases. The city has been a part of the county set-up, receiving its money from the state through the county auditor's office.

While city officials said they had been waiting for a verbal opinion from the attorney general's office before setting up any relief plan, an Associated Press dispatch to The News-Journal today from

BACKS KENNEDY

Guffey Promises Aid to CIO Candidate for Governor.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Guffey (D., Pa.) today declared his support for Thomas Kennedy as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Pennsylvania.

Kennedy is backed by John L. Lewis, CIO chieftain, and is now the lieutenant governor of the state and secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

The Democratic state committee refused to endorse him at its recent meeting, selecting instead Charles A. Jones of Pittsburgh.

Pennsylvanians regarded the senator's statement as an open break between Guffey and the state Democratic organization.

NOTED WOMAN EXPLORER HERE

Mrs. Martin Johnson Presents Two Lectures In City Today.

Mrs. Martin Johnson, famous woman explorer, arrived in Mansfield early this afternoon from Beaver Falls, Pa., to give two illustrated lectures in the Senior high school auditorium under the auspices of the University club.

One was scheduled for 3:30 p. m. for students, and the lecture for adults will be presented at 8:15 this evening. Mrs. Johnson, who has made a number of trips into the African jungle with her husband who was killed in an airplane crash a year ago, will show motion pictures which were taken on these trips, to illustrate her talks.

No seats will be reserved tonight, and tickets may be obtained at the high school box office.

AUSTRIAN LEADER RESIGNS AS NAZIS MASS AT BORDER

Seyss-Inquart Expected to Replace Him as Chancellor; Germany Sends Troops to Boundary While Nazis In Vienna Riot.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—An Exchange telegraph dispatch from Vienna tonight reported that German planes were flying over the Austrian capital.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Vienna reported that German troops have crossed the Austrian frontier.

(By International News Service)

VIENNA—Bowing to Adolf Hitler's will, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg resigned office today after postponing Sunday's scheduled plebiscite on Austrian independence.

This totally unexpected and dramatic incident marked a signal victory for the fuehrer in his desire to dominate Austria and followed massing of German troops along the Austro-German frontier.

Violently opposed to Schuschnigg's plan to call out a popular vote on the question of Austrian sovereignty, Hitler accused him of "breaking his pledge" and reportedly delivered an ultimatum demanding cancellation of the plebiscite and his resignation.

As his successor Hitler made it known he wanted Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, minister of the interior and the outstanding Nazi in Austria.

Bloody clashes between Nazis, freed by Hitler from previous restriction imposed on them, and followers of Schuschnigg's fatherland front preceded his resignation.

Schuschnigg's unscheduled speech at Innsbruck early this week, when he surprised the world and infuriated Hitler by announcing plans for the plebiscite, proved to be his swan-song.

It was thought possible he realized postponement or cancellation and possibly his own resignation were inevitable once the might of Germany ranged against him. But he chose to go from office still insisting upon a free and untrammeled Austria, vassal to no nation, responsible only to itself.

A special cabinet council was convoked to consider the situation. It was reported a new government would be formed giving Nazis 50 per cent representation—exactly what Hitler has demanded.

President Miklas is expected to approve the new set-up.

Hitler Had Troops Ready.

There was never the slightest doubt of Hitler's anger over Schuschnigg's plans. It reached its climax today when he mobilized his Bavarian army corps and sent it speeding to the border and followed this by lifting restrictions on Nazi activities in upper Austria.

Dispatches from Rome said Hitler had flatly warned Schuschnigg he would invade Austria unless the latter called off his independent plebiscite and resigned.

As further indication of the sweeping extent of Hitler's victory over Schuschnigg, storm troops will be incorporated into the police force as active members, it was reported at Innsbruck today. Hitherto all storm troop activities in Austria have been under strict legal ban.

Hectic Day.

Schuschnigg's resignation came after a day of rapid-fire developments which for a time seemed due to bring an early outbreak in

All Europe Frightened As Nazi, Austrian Troops Move

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(By INS Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Austrian army mobilization and German troop concentrations on the Austrian frontier placed Europe today in a peril greater than any since the day Hitler marched into the Rhineland and the French army manned the Maginot line at war strength.

The two German dictators actually have thrown their armies face to face and Europe stands appalled at the possible consequences.

While France is semi-paralyzed in its effort to bring forth a government and Mussolini is apparently determined to remain neutral, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Hitler are giving every indication they know that Sunday's plebiscite over the fate of Austria will be critically decisive and that they intend to fight it out with

Nazis Draw Mild Warning From Britain In Austrian Crisis

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain today gave a mild, carefully phrased warning to Germany against military interference in Austria's Sunday plebiscite on independence.

Official British sources said reports had been received of movements of troops in Bavaria and that Britain had expressed to Germany the hope that the purpose of such movements was to preserve order on the Austro-German frontier.

Officials declined to say specifically to whom this view was expressed, but it was believed that it had been presented unmistakably to Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Von Ribbentrop on whose two-day visit to London hopes of better Anglo-German understanding had been based, ended his round of functions here with such understanding further off than ever and Europe's peace endangered.

Watchful detachments of mounted and foot police stood by as the top-hatted Ribbentrop drove through the gates of Buckingham palace in a swastika beflagged motor car for his farewell audience with King George. It was this farewell—Von Ribbentrop is the retiring Nazi ambassador to London—that was the ostensible reason for his visit.

There was no repetition of yesterday's hostile demonstrations against the German outside the foreign office, when crowds yelled, "Get out, Ribbentrop!"

TRADE FORCES DEPRESSED BY FIRM FAILURE

Stock Market Horizon Also Clouded by Threats of Nazi-Austrian Flare-up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Gloom prevaded brokerage houses today and stock market leaders fell fractions to around 2 points before receiving mild support.

Trading forces were still depressed by the Whitney failure and the indictment aftermath. Business news also continued to cloud the market horizon. Threats of an Austro-German flare-up, in addition, acted as a damper for speculative sentiment.

Railroad bonds again exhibited weakness. Major commodities pointed lower. Foreign securities markets registered declines.

Market analysts found little comfort in the Dun & Bradstreet survey which estimated retail spending throughout the country averaged 2 to 5 per cent under last week and 6 to 13 per cent below the corresponding period last year. Wholesale purchasing was placed at 8 to 22 pe rcent under the 1937 week.

Another drop in commercial loans of around $3,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday was disclosed in the federal reserve report.

MARCHING ARMY SCARES EUROPE

Concentration of Troops on Austrian Border Spreads Acute Alarm.

every weapon—perhaps even guns.

The issue of peace or a trouble which could grow overnight to disastrous proportions lies in the hands of Hitler.

If the fuehrer commands Nazis in Austria to keep order today and tomorrow and during the plebiscite on Sunday, Schuschnigg with his army and police and martial law may keep them in hand without serious bloodshed.

If no such order comes from Berlin or if the Nazis receive a tip to break up the plebiscite the results might be calamitous.

Hitler has repeatedly publicly declared he would not tolerate bloodshed in Austria, that he would not sit idly by and watch "Germans killing Germans."

The Nazi's exacerbation over Schuschnigg's surprise plebiscite was increased by the Austrian chancellor's sudden order to mobilize his army.

This takes control from the hands of Nazi Police Minister Seyss-Inquart and gives it to the war ministry, believed completely loyal to Schuschnigg.

The danger now is if the rioting throughout Austria reaches a height sufficient to justify Hitler in his own mind it is his right and duty to march in and restore order.

Chances of the riots becoming worse were increased by the fact that socialists as well as Nazis are now demonstrating, and this plays straight into the Nazi policy of blaming the reds and into Hitler's own conviction that he is destined to succor the world from Bolshevism.

THEATER

THE "unluckiest man in Hollywood" gets a break at last. He is Duncan Renaldo, who made a hit in "Trader Horn" a number of years ago, only to have an avalanche of marital and citizenship troubles cut short his screen career. He is given a role in "Tropic Holiday" at Paramount, and believes the role means a turn in the tide of his personal misfortunes. The "Trader Horn" picture brought misfortune to all of its principals. Edwina Booth, the leading woman, contracted a jungle fever from which she has never recovered. Harry Carey who was a top star in Westerns, saw his star go into a sharp descendency when he returned from Africa. He is seen only infrequently in films now.

Cosmopolitan Industry

The movies are probably the most truly cosmopolitan industry, for its workers come from the corners of the earth. In "Gold Is Where You Fin It", now playing at the Ohio, there are six players, three of whom were born in foreign lands, and three in different sections of this country. Olivia deHavilland, the heroine, was born in Tokio of English parents; Claude Rains, who plays the wheat farmer, was born in London; and George Brent is Irish born and served as a secret service man during the Irish Rebellion. Margaret Lindsay claims Dubuque, Ia., as her birthplace; while the nearby state of Wisconsin cradled John Litel. Barton McLane, the husky villain, was born in Columbia, S. C. Put them all together and you have them playing in a typical early American drama, all portraying native born Americans.

* * *

Auspicious Beginning.

Little Jean Parker, who plays the leading feminine role in "Penitentiary", had a most auspicious beginning in pictures, appearing in a major supporting role to a most distinguished trio — Lionel, John and Ethel Barrymore, no less. Jean was a high school girl, whose picture had been used on the Olympiad posters, when that event was held in California several years ago. After only one screen test she was given the role of the Grand Duchess Tatiana in "Rasputin" which starred the Barrymores. This was followed by leads in "Little Women", an all-star cast; "Sequoa" and "The Ghost Goes West". In her latest picture, she is seen in a cast largely of men—John Howard, Walter Connolly, and Robert Barrat. "Penitentiary" is the Madison attraction today.

One of His Best.

The Muni picture which the Majestic is showing the last half of the week, was made in 1935 before the character actor had made his two greatest pictures—"Life of Pasteur" and "Life of Emile Zola". His first outstanding picture was "Fugitive From A Chain Gang" and since then he has skyrocketed to cinema heights for artistry and dramatic interpretation. When he made "Bordertown", Bette Davis, one of the best of character actresses was co-starred with him in this drama of a Mexican boy who tried to pull himself by his boot straps out of his environment, and dropped back when his efforts culminated in tragedy. It is still regarded as one of his best pictures, however. The second feature is Dick Powell, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins and Doris Weston in "Singing Marine".

Rise of a Star.

Gene Autry, whose legal fight with Republic, is temporarily holding up his screen activities, recently made a personal appearance tour, which was one of the most successful ever made by a screen star. His rise in popularity is almost spectacular. A year ago he was sending out about 100 autographed photos a week; now he sends out an average of 600 a week. He has an excellent voice for cowboy songs and in "Boots and Saddles", his current picture at the Ritz, sings a number of them. The Autry picture is one of three attractions; the other two being "Charlie Chan On Broadway". (in which he solves a night spot murder), and the beginning of the new serial, "Radio Patrol", based on the newspaper cartoon.

HEARS $10,000 FALSE ARREST SUIT MONDAY

Petit Jury Has Six Cases on Docket Next Week In County Court.

A $10,000 damage suit involving a false arrest charge is scheduled to come before the Richland county petit jury when it convenes Monday morning to hear six cases, four of them damage suits.

The action, which was filed by Charles E. Davis, Sharon township, accuses Mrs. Mae Ralston, Mansfield, of having him arrested without grounds last July 7. Assault charges against Davis were dismissed in municipal court after he had spent 22 hours in jail.

Mrs. Ralston had charged that Davis, a tenant on her farm in Sharon township, assaulted her when she visited the farm. Atty. Frank S. Culp will represent Davis and Atty. A. S. Beach will be counsel for Mrs. Ralston.

Other cases assigned for trial next week are:

Remainder of Docket.

Tuesday — Jeanette Young vs. E. P. Robinson, administrator of estate of Charles E. Reynolds, deceased, for $775 judgment on note, Atty. George W. Biddle for plaintiff and Beam and Beam for defendant; Charles Site vs. C. C. Broller, administrator of estate of Mayone Ronk, for $435 judgment on note, Attys. Leo J. Scanlon and John Berger, jr., for plaintiff and R. P. Gosser and A. S. Beach for defendant.

Wednesday — Edwin Harrison vs. Wilson Duckworth, for $200 damages to plaintiff's automobile as result of accident, Attys. Beam and Beam for plaintiff.

Thursday—Linus F. Phillips vs. Blanche Summers and others, for $15,250 damages resulting from traffic accident last April in Shiloh, Attys. Long, Anderson and Green for plaintiff, Weldon and Huston and Beam and Beam for defendants; Ralph Tennant vs. Edith Pry, for $400 judgment for alleged misrepresentation of property, Atty. J. D. Sears for plaintiff and Arden W. Wiseman for defendant.

MELLON ESTATE 45 MILLIONS

Gifts Prior to Financier's Death Cut Substantially Into Estimates.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—The first "official" estimate of the estate left by the late Andrew W. Mellon has been set by executors of his will at $45,000,000, much less than unofficial estimates.

At the time of Mellon's death last summer, the value of his vast holdings was believed to be from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000. But gifts before his death to his children, Paul Mellon and Ailsa Mellon Bruce, as well as donations to his favorite philanthropies, are known to have greatly reduced the fortune.

The list of Mellon's properties and securities was given to the auditor general merely to provide him with a list of holdings which might be checked for preliminary valuation. Appraisers already have begun checking the inventory.

The entire estate is subject to a 10 per cent state inheritance tax. In addition, attorneys' fees must be paid, as well as 1½ per cent compensation to the three executors, Paul Mellon, David K. E. Bruce, and Donald D. Shepard, Washington attorney.

Included among the Mellon holdings are cash deposits in banks in London and Paris, a home Mellon purchased as a residence when he was United States ambassador to the Court of St. James in London, and large blocks of stock in the Aluminum Company of America, the Melbank company, and three water companies.

RELIEF STILL 'UP IN THE AIR'

County to Drop Responsibility Tuesday—City Makes No Move to Accept Load.

Columbus said no opinion had been asked of the attorney general and none was expected to be asked.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott asserted that the city and Madison township could not legally combine under one relief administration after the county gives up the handling of relief next Tuesday.

Under a state ruling, Marriott said, the bureau of inspection will not approve the county auditor's checks for payment of relief bills after March 15. The county, however, will be permitted to allocate the state funds to the sub-divisions in accordance with their relief needs.

The state auditor's order followed complaints by state relief examiners that several Ohio counties were operating relief systems without authority.

Richland commissioners said they knew they had had no authority to administer relief since last April, but continued to handle the problem because they already had the administrative set-up and were having little difficulty meeting costs.

Unemployment conditions since last fall have jumped relief costs from $3,500 to $24,000 a month and forced the county to seek help from the sub-divisions.

County to Keep Record.

The county may be required to set up a staff for keeping county relief figures to submit monthly to the state auditor. County commissioners had made no move toward establishing the department today, however, explaining that they had received no definite instructions as to the procedure.

Until Tuesday, the relief office on Orange street will continue to be supervised by the county and the county will pay all bills to that date, commissioners said.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter pointed out that it is unlikely there will be any change in the present method of handling relief, which is directed by Earl A. Nist, appointed two months ago by the county commissioners.

The only relief money available under the present plan is a $5,500 monthly allocation from the state from a $6,500,000 fund set up by the state legislature early in January. The county had to put up about $39,000 for matching the funds throughout 1938.

WHITNEY FACES THEFT CHARGE

Grand Jury Indicts Broker In $105,000 Shortage In Security Fund.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—An indictment charging Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange with the theft of $100,000 in securities today transformed the collapse of the brokerage firm he headed into a case for the criminal courts.

The indictment, returned by a New York county grand jury yesterday in a lightning action by Thomas E. Dewey, district attorney, accused Whitney of first degree grand larceny in the misappropriation of the securities from a trust fund of which he was executor and co-trustee.

The heavy-set, Grave Whitney, five times president of the stock exchange and Wall street leader through the critical years of the depression, was charged with appropriating securities of "an aggregate value of about $105,000" for personal loans, from a fund established by his father-in-law, the late George R. Sheldon, leaving in the fund only a single share of Bethlehem Steel company stock with a market value of $55.

While Whitney silently went through the police routine of being booked and fingerprinted, and posted bail, inquiries into the collapse of Richard Whitney and company went ahead on five other fronts, with at least two of them holding a possibility of additional criminal action.

Girl Who Gambled With Death Asks For Song, Gets It

KANSAS CITY —(U.P.)— Sylva Davis, lying in a hospital room with only her head protruding from the respirator that is keeping her alive, called her nurse and ordered a song.

"I can't sing, Toughie," protested Nurse Dorothy Regan.

Toughie—that's the complimentary nickname nurses have chosen for the gallant girl who risked death on the fifty-fifty chance that a rare operation would give her use of her arms and legs for the first time in her 20 years—answered slowly:

"Sure you can, don't be that way."

So there in a bare hospital room, to an audience of one, Nurse Regan held a strange concert. She sang "Blue Hawaii."

Last Tuesday surgeons sectioned part of "Toughie's" spinal cord in a bold attempt to reduce the muscular spasms of her paralysis. Time will tell whether the operation was a success.

SUBMITS PLAN FOR STURDIER SCHOOL BUSES

State Department Regulations Received by County Call For Safer Vehicles.

Regulations calling for sturdier and safer school buses had been submitted today to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, and other rural school officials throughout Ohio by the state department of education.

The regulations, drawn up by C. D. Hutchins, state superintendent of transportation, following a survey of the rural school transportation problem, will be turned over to county and local boards of education for consideration.

Included in the specifications set up in by Hutchins are steel bus bodies strong enough to support the weight of the bus if it overturned, an exhaust pipe that extends beyond the floor of the bus, fire extinguishers, first aid kits, emergency exit, safety glass and a motor governor.

State Director of Education E. N. Dietrich proposed that the regulations affect all equipment manufactured after June 1, 1938, and all school buses, regardless of age, after Sept. 1, 1941.

"While all proposed regulations may not be approved, the department will insist upon increased safety for transportation equipment at the close of the present school year," Dietrich said.

Robinson, who is an advocate of school bus operation by the local boards of education, recently was named on a state committee to study rural school bus improvement.

College To Use Old Gold Mine In Class Work

SANTA ROSA, Cal.—(U.P.)—The Junior College of this city believes it is the only one in the world that owns a gold mine, complete in every respect, except for gold.

The worked-out mine, but with all its installations complete, was discovered near Carson City, Nev., last year, when Jesse Peter, curator of the Junior College Geological and Anthropological Museum, was on a searching tour for specimens.

Something attracted his attention at once, and as the mine was being sold at a tax sale. Peter bought in for $2.85.

The "something" which had attracted Jeter's attention was not the possibility of exploiting the mine, but the fact that one of the shacks on the property had for its foundations a vast collection of Indian mortars that presumably at some time in the past had been made by some tribe at a nearby Indian village.

They had been turned up-side-down and used as supports for the superstructure of the shack. Many of them were worth hundreds of dollars each to collectors.

Officer Stumped By 5,000-Word Court Question

DALLAS, Tex.—(INS)—Dr. Horace Duncan, county health officer, is figuratively kicking himself today for missing a beautiful chance.

Dr. Duncan was testifying in a murder trial here and was asked a 5,000-word question, which took 35 minutes to propound. At the conclusion the county officer briefly commented that he couldn't answer scientifically without making some laboratory tests.

"Why, oh why, didn't I think to say, 'Will you please repeat that question?'" Dr. Duncan mourned today.

AUSTRIAN CHIEF BOWS TO HITLER, LEAVES OFFICE

Schuschnigg Calls Off Vote on Independence as Nazi Troops Mass at Border.

the smoldering European war situation.

Throughout Austria there was rioting and hand-to-hand fighting between Nazis and anti-Nazis, and Schuschnigg called out police and army reserves to put down the uprising.

In Bavaria, on the German side of the Austrian border, heavily-armed and well-equipped troops moved speedily toward the border. Although Berlin authorities insisted the troop movement was "purely routine," it was found that the men were equipped with pontoons and other supplies which would have permitted them to build bridges to cross the river boundary, if necessary.

The capitals of Europe waited tensely, to see what the outcome would be, with Schuschnigg determined that the plebiscite, in which Austria was to vote on independence or alliance with Germany, would go on and Hitler equally determined to stop it.

Development piled on development, reaching a climax with Hitler's flat demand that the plebiscite be called off and Schuschnigg, who had aroused the Fuehrer's anger with his unscheduled Innsbruck speech, asserting the independence of Austria, standing firm that it should go on, without interference.

In the showdown, Hitler won as Schuschnigg bowed to his demands.

As he gave up his office, a measure of quiet had returned to Vienna after hours of serious rioting.

Dispatches from Paris, quoting reports to the Chamber of Deputies, said that one reason Schuschnigg had resigned was that France and Great Britain had refused to back him up in his plebiscite dispute with Hitler.

Nazi Troopers March on Border.

MUNICH—(INS)—A "big parade" of warriors and army equipment with but few equals since the World war today crowded the highways leading from Munich, capital of Nazism, towards the Austrian border.

The most conservative estimates placed the troops at a minimum of 5,000.

The most threatening factor noticeable to eye-witnesses was the fact that their trucks carried motor-boats, bridge-building material, and pontoons.

Invasion of Austria, scene of the independence plebescite, scheduled for Sunday but cancelled today by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg as he resigned would involve crossing of the Inn and Salzach rivers on the frontier —and the German troops were obviously prepared for such a possible movement.

The gray clad, steel-helmeted young men who marched out of here, their faces set, were mostly troops of the Seventh corps. But their columns were accompanied by Nazi brownshirts and Hitler Elite guards.

One correspondent motored 30 miles toward the frontier, and in that space counted 130 army trucks, packed with fighting equipment and soldiers.

While the high command in Berlin insisted that troop movements were "inconsequential" and meant only to preserve order on this side of the frontier, this observer estimated there were 2,000 men in that line-up.

Three thousand Elite guards, a company of Field Marshal Hermann Goering's regiment, and a portion of the Seventh corps was seen on the Bavarian side of the frontier.

Washington Silent On European Crisis.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Although deeply concerned over the new European crisis, state department officials maintained strict silence today over the rapid-fire events in Austria and Germany which may plunge Europe into war.

The view was taken, however, that, deplorable and disconcerting as the situation is, there is nothing this government can do about it.

Paris Calls In Nazi Envoy In Crisis.

PARIS—(AP)—Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos today called in the German ambassador, Count Johannes Von Welczeck, and directed his attention to what was officially described as "the grave European situation brought on by concentration of German assault units on the Austrian border."

Official spokesmen made no attempt to hide their concern over the turn of events in central Europe which heightened anxiety over delays in the formation of a new French cabinet, attempted by Leon Blum, the Socialist leader.

After the German envoy's visit, the Austrian minister, Alois Vollgruber, called at the foreign office.

It was made known that Britain and France were exchanging information on the situation.

Blum, the premier-designate, refused to disclose his foreign policy until assured of radical-socialist support, threatening a deadlock in France's efforts to set up a new cabinet.

Blum was designated by President Albert LeBrun to solve the cabinet crisis after the resignation of Premier Camille Chautemps, who failed to gain support of his demands for decree powers to control the franc.

GALION HEARS TRAVEL TALK BY HALLIBURTON

Lecturer Appears Before Big Crowd at Event Staged by School Fraternity.

GALION—Just as the "Royal Road to Romance" swept the country overnight after its author, Richard Halliburton, met the right publisher, so did he sweep his audience to the ends of the world in a personal appearance here Thursday night at Senior high school auditorium.

His lecture here was sponsored by the local chapter of Quill and Scroll, national honorary scholastic journalism fraternity. A capacity audience was on hand to see and hear the author of five books that have amazed a critical world with their audacity and strange happenings.

At present his lecture tour calls for a strenuous schedule with engagements every night during the week. He came to Galion from Delaware where he appeared Wednesday night, and tonight he speaks in Indianapolis.

Meets With Students.

Journalism students thronged the auditorium stage following the lecture when Halliburton had consented to talk with high school reporters in a body. Citizens who had probably never heard of his books had purchased them this week with the promise that Halliburton would autograph them when he appeared here. More than a hundred were on hand with books in hand, and Halliburton complied.

When his tour is completed, he plans to leave in June for China, always with the idea that his travels are only for the purpose of gaining material for his books. Halliburton wishes to be considered an author rather than a traveler, he told reporters.

He encouraged the journalism students when he said that his first interview was with Billy Sunday when he was yet in high school.

He is now working on his next book, Richard Halliburton's Book of Marvels, which he writes while traveling by bus and train on his lecture tour. He also is planning a biography of the English writer, Rupert Brooks, and a Royal Road to Romance in the United States. During his afternoon in Galion at Hotel Central he spent some time in writing.

ENTERTAINS AT PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Meredith welcomed members of "The Good Times club" to their home Wednesday evening for a party. Four tables of euchre were in play with closing scores gifts going to Mrs. Lester Hart and Lloyd Wagner. Mrs. Tracy Divelbiss was awarded lone hand prize. Refreshments brought a pleasant evening to a close.

HOSTESS TO LADIES' AID

Mrs. Anna McGurley opened her home on Sandusky street to 35 members of the Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. McGurley, presided for routine business, with Mrs. Harry Rinenour in charge of the devotional period. Contests were provided for entertainment. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Nettie Wertz and Mrs. Bertha Blackburn in serving refreshments.

Twelve members answered roll call when the W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Ethel Smith, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Cora Owen presided as leader. The following topics were discussed: "The Women of the Bible", and "Bible Words on Prayer".

CALL GIRL'S DEATH MYSTERY

Police Find Body On Sidewalk at Hotel Where She Stayed.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Mystery marked the death today of a young woman who registered at a small midtown hotel as Mary Chenery of Detroit.

Her left wrist slashed, she was found lying on a sidewalk some 30 feet beyond a point directly below her fourth floor room, the window of which was open.

Police Lieut. George Dooley said there were bloodstains in the room, but none leading to the window or into a hallway.

MORE MEASLES

54 New Cases Reported Past Week Sends Total to 115.

The outbreak of measles in Richland county showed a continued increase today as health authorities said 54 more cases were reported in the past week to bring the total for the first 10 days of March to 115.

Of the new cases, 33 were reported in the city and 21 were in scattered sections of the county, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said. In all 80 cases are in the city and 35 in the county.

Dr. Rehder said the disease is more prevalent than usual this year and that the United States public health service reported a marked increase throughout the nation.

TAX ADVANCE TO 'SAVE' SCHOOLS

$40,000 Granted Against Real Estate Collections Forestalls Need for Loan.

Mansfield schools today had been granted a second advance of $40,000 against the current real estate tax collections to rescue them from financial difficulties. A $67,000 advance was granted last month by the county auditor.

The advance was requested by Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the Mansfield board of education, who said it would enable the schools to operate a while longer without asking for a loan against future allocations from the state.

The city's schools last week were authorized to borrow $46,000, but they already have $23,000 outstanding in previous notes, and Bristor said the borrowing would be delayed to save interest, which must be paid by the board.

Today's advance to the schools brings the total to $107,000, more than half the amount due the schools from the first-half collection of real estate taxes.

It Can Be Done.

LAST year, traffic accidents in this country claimed 39,700 lives—a 4 per cent rise over 1936. Yet, in spite of increased highway travel, 20 states cut their death tolls. The total increase in highway slaughter was due entirely to the other 28 states, where fatalities increased by 10 per cent.

The 20 states which made a start toward solving the automobile traffic problem, weren't "just lucky." In the great majority of cases, their comparatively good records were the result of hard, efficient work. They actually earned the savings in lives and dollars that a reduction in motor accidents involves.

What tools are ready at hand with which to cut down the automobile's toll? The answer is simple enough. First on the list comes unremitting public education—by schools, by civic groups, by governmental bureaus. Second, honest law enforcement under modern highway codes—and that means that every apprehended violator of the statutes must be punished quickly and fairly, that "pull" and ticket-fixing must be eliminated. Third, improvement and better lighting of streets and roads, and elimination of "accident prone" locations, are preventers of death.

This doesn't exhaust the list by any means—but these "musts" are vital to any workable accident prevention endeavor. The 20 states that cut deaths last year are to be congratulated. Let them repeat this year—and let the other 28 states follow suit. It can be done.

Labor Shortage.

ONE of the remarkable things about Germany is that there is no unemployment. Lately there has developed an actual shortage of labor. As a result, government control over labor, already great, is being extended so that youths leaving the schools, and even girls, are being drafted for work, and independent artisans are forced to leave their shops and go into factories. The shortage exists in both skilled and unskilled labor.

Superficially this would suggest abounding prosperity. It is only during a great boom that we Americans find ourselves in such a plight. But Germany's achievement grows more dubious when you analyze it.

Where do the formerly idle masses go? First into the army, which has been greatly enlarged. Second into war industries, which are operating on a vast scale, and which, unless Hitler is accomplishing a miracle never heard of before, are impoverishing the country instead of enriching it. Third into a government labor service, which uses large numbers of men on highways, fortifications and other public projects. Fourth into the government and party bureaucracies that have grown with the scope of national operations.

The fact seems to be that Germany's "National Socialist" government (Nazi for short) is really coming to be what its name implies. Hitler is reshaping the German nation and economic system into what we would call state socialism, with himself at the head wielding absolute power.

Place Names.

IT IS SAID that Kennebunkport, Me., has been Kennebunkport for one hundred years. But there seem to be people who have looked up the records and say that it was originally "Arundel." They propose that the older name be restored now.

The final decision will be reached in town meeting, but the preliminary discussion is pretty warm. Kennebunkport's famous authors are divided in opinion. Margaret Deland wants the name "Arundel" revived. Booth Tarkington finds the present Kennebunkport "an old and honorable name, full of character," and confesses that he would regret its change.

Here is an example of present-day instability cropping out in a stronghold of tradition. There must be some point in the life of a community when its name and the spelling thereof should become permanent. The many changes in the maps of Europe have become an annoyance to persons whose days of studying geography are past and who would like to find what they learned still better. It is not the changes in boundary lines that are most disturbing, but the revival of nationalistic spelling and the return to ancient and forgotten names.

A Vexing Problem.

With Courage.

TRAGEDY seems to have struck [illegible] the past two weeks for especially severe punishment.

First, two children of a well-known family are lost with a trans-continental airliner. A week later, Owen Gages and a student pilot, Theodore Crom, journey to their deaths in a plane.

Naturally, the tragedy strikes hardest at the family of the victims. And there is something to be admired in the manner in which young Gages' parents faced their grief. A truly air-minded family, they seemed able to face their sorrow with the same courage they applied in their flying.

Timid people don't fly airplanes. It seems quite fitting and proper that those who could take a calamity [illegible] with courage should also face their loss in the same way.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

A QUESTION is asked: "When will the people rise up in Germany, Italy and Russia and overthrow their dictators?"

Such a question indicates the belief in America at least, that the people will rise up.

It no longer is a question of Nazism or Fascism of Communism. It is a question of peoples escaping from horrible despotisms.

Theories of government or of economic and social emancipation cannot even be raised—for the nations with totalitarian rule are so completely within the grasp of the dictatorship machines that nothing except abysmal fear prevails.

We cannot understand the Soviet "reason" trials because we cannot conceive that a political opportunist is a treasonist. Although plotting with another country for overthrow of the existing government would be termed treason in any country by the government in power.

We cannot understand Nazism because it precludes all opposition and together with Fascism accords as a nation a moral right the taking of the homelands of other peoples, even to the slaughter of the peoples as in Ethiopia as in China and as in Spain.

Surely if such thought and such actions can be squared with morality and justice then all that we have learned through the ages must be cast aside.

And that is exactly what the dictators are trying to have us do.

If Russia had remained a purely Socialist state if German culture had been permitted to build a great democracy, if Italy with its own age-old traditions of culture had been left to develop with the new era through application of the gentle charm of its people rather than through the force of a pseudo-Caesar then Americans would be less puzzled.

But they believe that in the end the law of values, as they know it, will prevail.

HORROR-TALE

We just have been reading excerpts from the leading English weekly of opinion, of experiences in a German concentration camp.

The horrors and the tortures that the poor beings in those prison camps must undergo beggar description.

One wonders that life can continue for these miserable men. That such brutality can exist under the eyes of other human beings and with the knowledge of men who rule the nation, seems inexplainable.

We are living in one of the darkest ages of mankind.

And yet we live in hope that justice and humanity will return.

Let's Look Around

Variety Marks Sight-Seeing In New Orleans.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

NEW ORLEANS, La.—After the gayety of its pre-lenten carnival season has wound up on Shrove Tuesday in a final burst of merriment, with its traditional Mardi Gras parade and throngs of masked revelers filling the streets, New Orleans settles down to serious observance of Lent, for the early French, Spanish and Italian influence is still strongly evidenced in the religious life of this city.

Having once attained the unenviable reputation of being America's "wickedest city," New Orleans has in more recent years made a considerable effort to wipe out this stigma and to take place among the better behaved of the large cities, with excellent policing of what had previously been unsavory districts.

* * *

SEEING New Orleans in anything like a complete way is much more than even the long walks and many hours devoted to looking through the French quarter—it also involves a long motor trip through interesting parts of the city and a boat ride around the harbor, without which there could be little appreciation of the immensity of the world commerce that passes through this second largest port in the United States.

With its eight miles of wharves, cotton warehouses covering 33 acres and the largest coffee and banana terminals in the country, it is estimated that port and harbor improvements have a value of more than $220,000,000.

* * *

MOTOR tours around the city constitute an item of "big business" here, being available in a variety of ways and at widely differing costs. A complete trip occupies several hours and includes a visit to many of the older sections of the modern city with their spacious ante-bellum homes and beautiful secluded gardens, the fine new airport on Lake Pontchartrain, old cemeteries where above-ground burials were made because of the moisture-saturated soil, and City Park, once a plantation of which the famous Duelling Oaks served as a meeting place for settling many an "affair of honor" in the early days.

AIMS, SETBACKS OF LABOR CITED IN NEW BOOKS

Library Additions Describe 'Labor's Search For More,' Unionization Methods.

Two books on organized labor, its progress, its aims and its setbacks, are among the non-fiction volumes added by the Mansfield Public Library this week-end.

"Labor's Search For More" by Robert Malcolm Keir is a survey of labor experiences in the past generation. The author points out that the past record of labor's struggles is the guide to its future achievements.

"When Labor Organizes", by Robert R. R. Brooks, presents candidly the facts on what actually has happened. He tells how and why men and women are signed up by labor unions, and describes industry's steps to block organization and labor's counter-attacks.

"Business Ethics" by Frank Chapman Sharp and Philip G. Fox, deals with the right and wrong in the competitive business world. The book is the outgrowth of a course on business ethics at the University of Wisconsin.

Other non-fiction this week includes:

"Rediscovering the Adolescent", by Dimock; "Nursery Years", Isaacs; "One-House Legislature", Senning; "Cotton Goes to Market", Garside; "Our Coast Guard", David; "All the World's Fighting Fleets", Talbot-Booth; "Radio and Education; 1931, 1933, 1934", by National Advisory Council on Radio in Education; "Folk Tales of All Nations", Lee; "Making Words Work for You", Smith; "The Medea and Some Poems", Cullen, and "Year's End", by Johnson.

Tops Fiction List.

The story of a modern Greek, who made his own way in the world is told in "Forever Ulysses" by C. P. Rodocanachi, and translated by Patrick Leigh-Fermor, one of the new fiction books.

Ulysses, uneducated but clever, aids Lord Kitchener in the Egyptian campaign, and, looking after his own interests, amasses a fortune as well. The novel has an absorbing and clear cut style.

From the records of a congressional investigation more than a half century ago, Commander Edward Ellsburg has taken the background and events for his novel "Hell On Ice". This saga of the "Jeanette", an American ship taken on an ill-fated expedition in search of the North Pole in 1879, paints a picture of heroism despite the innumerable hardships encountered during two desperate years in the Arctic.

Desmond Holdridge, author of "Escape to the Tropics", has written a new novel set in the jungles of South America. A group of people are stranded on a tributary of the Amazon during the dry season, having come there in the Deisel yacht "Witch" on a whim of its wealthy owner. "Witch in the Wilderness" tells graphically the effects of the tropics and the native neighbors on the lives of these isolated white men and women.

Five other new fiction books will be ready for circulation within a few days. They are "Duet in Discord" by Garner; Sunset at Noon" by Feiner; "Thirsty Earth", Robinson; "For Us In The Dark", Royde-Smith; and "Harness Bull" by White.

ISSUE APPEAL

Volunteers of America Seek Used Furniture, Clothing.

An appeal for used furniture and clothing was issued today by Capt. William P. Westcott of the Volunteers of America, so that the industrial and co-operative department of the society may continue to operate through the spring months.

The co-operative idea is being worked out in Mansfield along lines similar to the Goodwill Industries of Cleveland and other large cities, Capt. Westcott said. It was put into effect as an experiment and now is paying out for both the organization and the individuals.

Old furniture, used clothing, newspapers and magazines are taken into the department, and are renovated, repaired or rebuilt by the homeless men who find temporary sanctuary at the Volunteers' hall, 278 North Main street.

In exchange for their services the men are provided with lodging and meals, according to Capt. Westcott. Many of them are men who are unable to find employment. The Volunteer truck calls at homes for contributions.

U. S. MUST MEET JOB PROBLEMS, PRESIDENT SAYS

Tells Community Chest Heads Government Can't Escape Work Responsibility.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The economic system of the nation demands that able-bodied employables be provided jobs, President Roosevelt said today, and the government cannot escape the responsibility for maintaining this system.

Mr. Roosevelt recommitted himself to support of a federal work program in specific terms in addressing the 25th anniversary meeting of the mobilization for human needs here, comprising heads of the community chest movement in the nation.

Executives of the various community chests, headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, gathered on the south lawn of the White House to hear the president, before they plunged into the work of mapping the program for this year's community chest campaigns.

Broad Necessity.

It is not only the men themselves who need jobs if they are to be assets to the country in years to come, said the president. The complex industrial system of this country, he said, is geared to employment of the masses and the consequent maintenance of mass purchasing power. Direct relief, such as that of the community chests and other private charities is vital, but must be considered only as part of the nation's relief burden.

"The able bodied unemployed need work, and should have it," said the president. "But equally the economic system needs that they should have it. A federal works program not only serves the unemployed, it saves the jobs of those who have jobs.

"Our industrial production cannot progress, as it must, unless our masses have income with which to buy its products.

"That, in brief, is an aspect of the relief problem—a most important aspect—which I commend to the thoughtful consideration of all who are enlisted in this splendid mobilization for human needs.

"Only in jobs and more jobs, at good pay, shall we find national stability and individual security."

The president pointedly advised the community chest executives that the federal government had, except in certain emergencies, left the problem of caring for the unemployable idle to the states and localities. Mr. Roosevelt said that this policy would be continued, and that care of the unemployable idle was the "natural sphere" of individual localities.

Effinger Heading New 'Legion' For Drive On Aliens

TOLEDO — (AP) — The Toledo News-Bee, in a copyrighted interview, quoted Virgil H. Effinger of Lima, as saying that he is commander-in-chief of the new Patriotic Legion of America.

Effinger for more than a year and a half has been fighting extradition to Michigan to answer criminal syndicalism and explosive possession charges growing out of his alleged connection with the Black Legion.

The News-Bee quoted Effinger as saying the Patriotic Legion is "an invisible empire" seeking to unite American-born Catholics and Protestants against colored persons, Jews and aliens.

A Farmer's Diary

March 11.

ONE of my neighbors who fortunately possesses the largest family in this section is a farmer. He owns 80 acres of land and with thrift which has become almost proverbial, he and his wife have reared a family of nine children—seven boys and two girls.

The old red brick house has been modernized and from the southern windows of the sunroom flowers flaunt their bloom all winter. The barn was flat but they raised it six feet and made a bank barn. All the buildings are now in splendid condition. The land is heavy clay and was none too fertile. The farm is well tiled now, and by careful cropping the fields have been made to yield much more.

Many times during long winter evenings I visited this home. Each time I saw around the large dining table, six or seven children with books, papers and pencil, preparing lessons for school next day. Some went to the grades, some to high school and others to college. The mother would ply her mending, the father would read or sit and watch with deep sense of pride his busy brood.

Today five boys from this home are college graduates. All are useful citizens, honest, reliable, industrious and thrifty as their parents.

Only two are now at home. Five have gone to the city and made the town a better place to live.

Burns said, "From scenes like this, old Scotia's grandeur springs," but from homes like this America's hope of freedom and happiness is built.

Hensley yesterday denied any connection with the crime.

Receive Coveted Awards From Motion Picture Academy; 'Emile Zola' Best Movie.

Last year she also won for her impersonation of Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld." Her double victory is unprecedented in the ten-year history of the academy acting awards.

The award for the best picture of 1937, as determined by a poll of 15,000 film workers including extras, went to Warner Brothers' "The Life of Emile Zola."

Awards for best supporting performances were given Joseph Schildkraut, the martyred Captain Dreyfus of "Zola," and Alice Brady, the heroic mother of "In Old Chicago."

Leo McCarey's direction of "The Awful Truth" earned him the statuette annually accorded the top megaphone-wielder.

Even Charlie McCarthy, the wooden wisecracker, was remembered as starch-shirted notables distributed the awards in a crowded hotel dance room and 1,300 guests, who paid $25 a plate, applauded continually.

The academy decided Edgar Bergen, Charlie's vocal master, should have a small wooden "Oscar" for his outstanding comedy creation.

W. C. Fields presented Mack Sennett, old-time king of bathing beauty comedies, a special award for service.

Walt Disney, Mickey Mouse's poppa, received two awards—one for development of a multi-plane color camera and the other for his cartoon, "The Old Mill."

Other honors went to screen writers William A. Wellman and Robert Carson of "A Star Is Born"; Norma Reilly Raine, Heinz Herald and Geza Herczeg of "Zola"; Art Director Stephen Goosson of "Lost Horizon"; Sound Recorder Thomas Moulton of "Hurricane"; Dance Director Hermes Pan of "Damsel In Distress"; and Song Writer Harry Owens of "Sweet Lelanie."

GUFFEY BACKS CIO CANDIDATE IN PENNSY SPLIT

Senator Announces Support For Lewis Aid, Leaves State Organization.

WASHINGTON — Senator Joseph F. Guffey split with Pennsylvania's Democratic state commitee today to support CIO's Thomas P. Kennedy for the gubernatorial nomination.

"In Pennsylvania the Democratic party cannot win without labor and labor cannot win without the Democratic party," Guffey said, in announcing his support for one of John L. Lewis' right-hand men.

The formal statement by the senator who has been Pennsylvania's Democratic leader for years touched off excited speculation in the politically-minded capital. This centered chiefly on Lewis' growing political importance and potential power in the 1940 party conventions and elections.

Pennsylvania is second only to New York in the number of delegates it sends to the Democratic national convention.

Roosevelt Supporter.

Guffey has been a leading supporter of President Roosevelt and his policies.

Kennedy, now lieutenant governor in the first Democratic administration Pennsylvania has had in 40 years, is secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America.

David Lawrence, secretary of the commonwealth and for many years Guffey's partner in Pennsylvania politics, has announced his support for Charles A. Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer.

Aligned with Lawrence are the state committee, Gov. George H. Earle, a candidate for the U. S. senate, and Matthew McCloskey, a Philadelphia leader.

State Attorney General Charles Margiotti is a third candidate for the Democratic nomination for the governor's chair and former Mayor William McNair of Pittsburgh is a fourth.

"According to the rules of the game as I know them," Guffey said, "Thomas Kennedy is much more entitled to the Democratic nomination for the governorship than is Mr. Jones."

Previously, there had been numerous attempts on the part of the Democratic leaders to line up a ticket that would satisfy Lewis and Kennedy without naming the latter for governor.

DAVEY TELLS OF BRADLEY PLOT

Governor Testifies Graft Witness Wanted to 'Frame' Huey Long.

"I'll say on oath that I had no such intention."

"How do you account for the fact that a letter over your signature on April 29 said this: 'My Dear Lee — Acknowledging your letter of April 27, in reference to the situation in Washington, I hesitate to suggest that you go to see Sen. Robinson until he shows some interest. I told him you would like to get some business from the government'."

"I assume that if that was in the letter, I did tell Robinson that," Gov. Davey answered.

"What was this government business?"

"I don't know."

"You mean you told Robinson that you wanted government business without even telling him what this business was?"

"I guess that is so."

"Did you know that Robinson was a member of a law firm in Arkansas that was counsel for one of the leading utilities in that part of the country?"

"I did not, and do not."

Today's hearing was marked by clashes between opposing attorneys. Once Assistant Prosecutor Neil W. McGill threatened to withhold all documents used as evidence until a certain missing paper was found. Harrison charged that one of Bradley's letters had "disappeared."

On each side of the table were stacks of correspondence that figured in the hearing from time to time.

Once Gov. Davey accused Bradley of "building up a blackmail file."

The governor also testified that he had received from Bradley "a letter with the flavor of blackmail."

Feeding the Hungry

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above text for March 13 is Mark 6:33-40, the Golden Text being Mark 6:37, "Give ye them to eat.")

An interesting New Testament study is afforded us in the incidents in the life of Jesus in which he was interrupted in his teaching or other work he was doing, and what came out of those interruptions.

The Interruptions of Jesus.

Nicodemus interrupted his rest that night he came secretly to Jesus' lodging in Jerusalem; the Samaritan woman interrupted his rest that noon at the well of Sychar; men eager for his blessing interrupted his sermon by lowering a man through the roof to be healed by him, the Sermon on the Mount is the by-product of another interruption; Mary Magdalene interrupted a feast to anoint his feet; the woman who touched the hem of his garment and was healed, received her healing as an interruption of his journey to the home of Jairus to restore a little girl to life after death; the feeding of the five thousand, and Jesus' subsequent discourse on the "Bread of Life" are the results of an interruption of a rest period Jesus planned for his disciples upon their return from their first missionary journey. Far from being annoyed or provoked by such interruptions, "he came forth and saw a great multitude, and he had compassion on them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd, and he began to teach them many things." How he shames our frequent irritation at the slight interruptions which come to us! He made them occasions for helpful ministry to those who brought the interruptions; we, too often, turn them into a show of temper.

Adding Machine Complex.

"The place is desert and the day is now far spent," said his disciples in their irritation. "Send them away, that they may buy themselves somewhat to eat. But he answered and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they say unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred pennyworth ($34 worth) of bread, and give them to eat?" They were good at computing their material resources and estimating requirements. But this "adding machine complex," which we so often share with them, fell short of estimating their real resources, for the simple reason that an adding machine has no key to press that will bring God into the sum total, and no problem is solved correctly when God is left out. They could add five loaves and two fishes, but they failed to go on and say "these plus Christ equal sufficient." Omitting Christ in their calculations, they made the mistake we read in their question to their Lord. "But what are these among so many?"

"Thou Preparest a Table."

For Jesus took their meager resources and prayerfully added heaven's rich blessing upon them and "prepared a table before them," even though the place was desert. "He took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed and brake the loaves; and he gave to the disciples to set before them: and the two fishes divided he among them all. And they did all eat and were filled. And they took up broken pieces, twelve basketfuls." He still has compassion on the hungry multitude. He has not failed to provide, but men in their selfishness have failed to distribute his bounty.

STYERT ORDERS SUBWAY TRAFFIC LIGHTS CHANGED

Amber Signal to Be Added, He Says; Change to Keep City System Uniform.

In an effort to eliminate confusion caused by traffic lights at the Park avenue east subway, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert today ordered the installation of three-bulb type signals to replace the red and green lights placed at the intersection of Routes 30 and 42, three months ago.

Styert said he had received numerous complaints about motorists running through the red signal because they did not understand the operation of the present lights.

He advocated a uniform traffic light system for the city and instructed Ernest Adams, city electrician, to make the necessary installation of the amber light on the signals to conform with other traffic lights in the city.

Signals Ordered.

Adams said an order had been placed with the manufacturer but that it would probably be two weeks before the equipment would reach Mansfield.

He explained that the installation would take additional time because of the additional wiring necessary for the three-bulb lights.

The lights were placed at the hazardous intersection last December to eliminate the congestion caused by the joining of the two highways near the subway.

The estimated cost at the time of the installation was $600.

Crawford Residents Ask State to Refuse Pennsy Request.

In a brief filed yesterday with the Ohio Utilities commission, residents of Tiro, Crawford county, and Gibsonburg, Sandusky county, asked the commission to refuse the Pennsylvania railroad permission to discontinue local, daily passenger service between Mansfield and Toledo.

Local passenger service between the two points was discontinued Dec. 9, the railroad citing loss of revenue as one of the reasons. The company then asked the utilities commission to approve the action.

The villages contend in their opposing brief that mere loss of revenue is not justification for leaving some smaller communities without rail service, and that the railroad should have obtained permission from the state before removing trains.

No date has been set for hearing on the brief.

VEGETABLE MARKET 'PERKS UP' WITH ARRIVAL OF NEW VARIETIES

The green vegetable market "perked up" a bit this week with the importation of several new varieties from warmer climates. Fresh asparagus grown out of doors in California finds a ready market, and two kinds of summer squash appeared on the Mansfield markets late this week. They are Italian squash, which resembles cucumbers, and the small white summer squash which is grown in Florida.

Then there are new crop turnips and beets, with their green tops, which many housewives cook separately for "greens." Hot peppers are also included in the new crop vegetables.

Green peas and fresh lima beans are attractive inducements to the shopper this week, as are those little pots of growing green chives, bundles of crisp water cress and fresh mushrooms. Fresh oakra, too, will be a new item this week.

White icicle radishes and small spring onions, cucumbers, sun ripened tomatoes, crisp carrots and green peppers all suggest spring salads.

The fruit markets too, offer its own attractions, with plenty of out-of-season luxuries to brighten the citrus fruits and apples that have been available all year. Strawberries and pineapples are becoming quite common, while such luxuries as Persian and honeydew melons, South American peaches and grapes, nectarine and persimons, and kumquats, will light up the week-end markets.

TVA Directors 'on Carpet' Before Roosevelt Today

DEMANDS PILE UP FOR POWER AGENCY PROBE

Senators Requesting Inquiry Regardless of Outcome of President's Meeting.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The two quarreling factions of the Tennessee Valley Authority board arrived separately at the White House today for a showdown conference with President Roosevelt. David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan reached the executive mansion at 10:50 a. m. (EST). Ten minutes later, Chairman A. E. Morgan followed them in.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Demands for an exhaustive congressional investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority increased today coincident with President Roosevelt's showdown conference with the authority's three squabbling directors.

Several Democratic and Republican senators expressed the belief that congress should make its own inquiry regardless of the outcome of Mr. Roosevelt's personal investigation.

Chairman Arthur E. Morgan and his opponents, Directors David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan, have been asked to meet the president.

Calls for 'Facts.'

The president called for facts—no opinions—to support charges the men have made against each other since their three-year-old differences developed into a public quarrel two weeks ago.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to ask Chairman Morgan the basis of his assertion that congress should investigate the TVA in the interest of "decency" in government.

On the other side, he wanted to know from Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan the grounds for their charge that the chairman had obstructed the TVA program.

The seriousness with which the president viewed the situation was indicated by the fact that he arranged for Stephen T. Early, White House press secretary, to make known soon after the conference the nature of the evidence presented.

The impression prevailed in congressional circles that one or more resignations might result from the inquiry. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said, however, that even if all three directors stepped out, congress should go ahead with its own investigation.

QUOTA FILLED

47 Sign For Scout Camp But There's Only Room for 35.

Although the annual Boy Scout spring camping period is still five weeks away, the camp quota has already been filled, Floyd Dent, area scout executive, announced today.

Registration of 47 Mansfield scouts already have been received but only 35 will be able to attend because of the lack of accommodations at the camp, Dent said.

The first 35 to register will be taken to camp, with the others being kept on a reserve list.

Fifteen scouts have signed already to attend the summer camp in July at Camp Avery Hand. The spring camp, as in past years, will be held at Gatton's Rocks near Bellville, opening Monday, April 11, and continuing through April 16.

Up and Down THE STREET

A copy of a Mansfield newspaper printed 60 years ago is the prized possession of three Mansfield boys, Robert Pugh, Albert Osborn and John Vrbanac. The paper, the Dec. 29, 1880, issue of the old "Ohio Liberal," was found on a dump heap near Newville and is in a good state of preservation. Among the officials of the city listed by the paper at that time were James Craighead as mayor and Norman M. Wolfe, father of the present county auditor, Norman Wolfe, city solicitor.

Six well-known Mansfield girls had a "swapping" party yesterday and all because they are tired of winter clothes. When they got together the other day, they admitted it was too early to shed the heavies in favor of light spring attire. Someone suggested that they all swap one complete outfit—suits, dresses, hats and shoes with whoever the clothes would fit. Yesterday they blossomed out in their "new" outfits. And mothers were bewildered when daughters came home in strange clothing or they saw the old familiar clothing on another girl.

Pushing a wheelbarrow loaded with human cargo up hilly South Diamond street from South Park to Home avenue and back isn't a cinch, William McBride, 107 South Foster street, will tell you, but that's just what he will have to do if Tommy Farr, who fights Max Baer in New York tonight, lets him down again. McBride lost a bet on Farr when he fought Jimmy Braddock, and he had to do the wheeling. But he's still for Farr. And the loser of his bet tonight with Melvin Harner, a neighbor, will have to do the pushing immediately after the fight.

When J. Merton Holcombe calls a rehearsal of the high school band members, they know he means business. Holcombe was getting frantic this week when engagements kept the school auditorium busy practically every night—with the district contest for class A high school bands at Bluffton only a week away. So it's an all-day rehearsal tomorrow, for the instructor asked the band to meet at 9:30 a. m.—and told the young musicians to bring their lunches. The students have been rehearsing early in the mornings—starting at 6 o'clock many times, in order to make up for lost time. The contest will be held next Friday.

ILL 2 YEARS, DIES

David R. Anderson, 79, Succumbs At Home in Millersburg.

MILLERSBURG—David R. Anderson, 79, a retired Holmes county farmer, died at his home here yesterday after an illness of two years. Surviving are his wife, Eugenia; a brother, Gilbert of Wooster, and a sister, Mrs. Ida Graham of near Millersburg.

Services will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Saturday with Rev. Joseph Kenney of the Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in Millersburg.

DR. WIRT DEAD AT 64

GARY, Ind.—(AP)—Dr. William A. Wirt, 64, Gary school superintendent whose charges that the nation's schools were being used to spread Communistic propaganda prompted a congressional inquiry in 1934, died today at his home here of a heart attack.

SHIFTS FIRST AID STATION

County Red Cross Takes Steps to Conform to National Organization's Plans.

Red Cross first aid stations on Richland county highways will be located in the future to conform to plans of national Red Cross to have all units at intersections or dangerous curves, Harker A. Enlow, first aid supervisor said today.

At least one station already established will be shifted as the result. The No. 1 station, which has been operated at Mancrest tourist park on West Fourth street road, will be moved to the Boyer filling station at the intersection of the Ontario-Shelby road and West Fourth street road on 30-N, Enlow explained.

Ten persons, including those at the station and neighbors in that vicinity will enter a first aid training class which will open at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the station. Allen Bond, first aid instructor, will conduct the classes.

Stations 2, 3 and 4 on route 30 east, at Lucas and Lexington respectively, already conform to the plans of national headquarters, Enlow said. Five more stations will be added this year, with a new one scheduled to open within a few weeks at the L. O. Shellhouse tourist home on route 42. A class of 10 will begin training for service there next Thursday with Lloyd Hoover as instructor.

Locations of the other stations have not been decided upon.

SEE REDUCTION OF 22 MILLIONS IN U. S. INCOME

Lawmakers Hope to Reinstate Amendment to Levy Against 'Family' Corporations.

WASHINGTON — A dispute over the amount of potential revenue in the new tax bill developed today among house members, seeking to retrieve funds lost by deletion of the levy on closely-held corporations.

Supporters of the eliminated tax said there was only a bare chance the house might agree to reinstate it before a final vote on the bill this afternoon. They declared its removal would lower the revenue yield by about $40,080,000.

Even if that tax were included, these legislators said, the bill would bring in $22,000,000 less than the $5,330,080,800, which the treasury receives from the present law.

Favors Liquor Tax Hike.

Rep. Robertson (D., Va.) persuaded the house yesterday to vote an increase of 25c a gallon in the liquor tax, which he said would produce $35,000,000 a year.

Rep. Thompson (D., Ill.) succeeded in tacking on an amendment to tax imported pork and pork products about $5,000,000.

Debate over the increase in the liquor tax, which now is $2 a gallon, brought appeals from some members for less hasty action.

Scrapped along with the import tax amendments were suggestions to put a 10 per cent tax on gross receipts of radio broadcasters, levy a one-cent a gallon tax on fuel oil, lower the beer tax from $5 to $2 a barrel and reinstate a tax on furs.

The major provisions left intact would modify the capital gains tax and establish a new corporate tax system.

After completing the tax bill, the house arranged to take up the billion dollar naval expansion program, although debate will not start in earnest until next week.

The senate was proceeding slowly with the government reorganization bill, against which Sen. Minton (D., Ind.) said opponents were conducting a "baby filibuster."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Another Radical Recruit.

THE recent selection of Prof. Thurman W. Arnold, author of "The Folklore of Capitalism" and "The Symbols of Government," as assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust law violations, has had two effects. One is to strengthen the hands of the radical group around the president, the other, to revive reports that Attorney General Homer Cummings is soon to retire from the cabinet.

* * *

SO FAR AS the latter is concerned, there is room for doubt. For one thing, Mr. Cummings is not the retiring kind. Decidedly he is not likely to be pushed into a resignation merely because he is no longer in control of his own department. For another, for reasons of general convenience, the president probably wants him to stay. However, on the score of increased power for the radical element there is no doubt at all.

* * *

THOUGH Cummings was permitted to make the announcement of Prof. Arnold's appointment and spoke of him as "my personal friend," that statement deceived very few people, indeed. It is perfectly well known that Cummings had almost nothing to do with the Arnold appointment, that the professor is an intimate friend of the Jackson-Corcoran-Cohen group, and it is they, and not Cummings, who induced the president to name him. His selection is a victory for them not only over the attorney general but over Donald Richberg, who, in the matter of monopoly policy, it was understood, had more or less convinced the president that the conservative approach along lines of governmental and industrial co-operation was the sound one, rather than the spectacular onslaught upon "big business" so ardently desired by the Jackson-Cohen-Corcoran school.

* * *

THOSE WHO know the facts insist that the Prof. Arnold appointment pushes the attorney general aside—that with Jackson as solicitor general, it puts his group in real control of the department of justice and reduces Cummings to a mere figurehead, which is exactly what the Jackson-Corcoran-Cohen combination have sought to make him and think he ought to be. Between them and the attorney general there has been a very wide gap for quite a long time. With the Arnold appointment, the feeling of the radicals is that they have taken over the department.

* * *

OF COURSE, it remains to be seen what they do with it now they have it. Prof. Arnold may want to function along the Jackson-Corcoran-Cohen lines, but he will not get very far without presidential support, and Mr. Roosevelt is not at all unlikely, now that he has made the appointment, to nullify its radical effect by soft-pedaling the whole monopoly business. However, the expectation of those who know the professor is that he will not fail to make an attempt to carry out the policies of the belligerent anti-business friend with whom he is affiliated and to advance the ideas about which he has written in a somewhat facetious manner.

* * *

THE outspoken Gen. Hugh Johnson, in his blunt and hearty way, refers to the professor as a "professional smart aleck," and attributes to him a hostility to the profit motive, which, if true, will make him feel close to certain of the White House economic advisers like Leon Henderson. The general believes that the appointment is a blow to the hope that there might be an "administration house-cleaning of radical fanatics." Instead, it is an indication that it is still recruiting them. It may be that this is too harsh a judgment to pronounce upon the professor before he begins to function. Nevertheless, it seems a fact that he is the most pronounced radical whom the president has yet named to an important post. But for the fact that Mr. Roosevelt so often offsets his moves in one direction by gestures in the other, his selection of Prof. Arnold for this particular post would seem significant of a presidential determination to proceed upon a ruthless regulatory policy. In any event, it is a queer way to restore business confidence. If the idea was to promote fear and increase uncertainty, he could hardly have named a better man.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The people who know least about popular songs—after they're written—are the songwriters.

Perhaps that's stating it too broadly, and yet there are enough instances in Hollywood's week-to-week gamble on pictures and songs to back it up.

"Sweet Leilani" is one. This was the hit tune of "Waikiki Wedding" and it's still being played around the world. Harry Owens, the maestro of Honolulu's Royal Hawaiian orchestra, wrote the song merely as a lullaby for his infant daughter, Leilani. He liked it well enough, but didn't consider it a world-beater. Bing Crosby, on a trip to the islands, heard Owens and company play it, and insisted that the song be included in his next picture. If the studio wouldn't, said Bing, he'd buy it himself. The song got in.

Incidentally, when Owens signed the contract for publishing rights, he instructed that the royalties be left to accumulate in trust for little Leilani. The young lady has more than $16,000 in that trust fund to date.

Brought to Hollywood — he's done "Hawaii Calls" and now is on "Cocoanut Grove"—Owens wrote four numbers for the latter film. He was rather proud of three of these, but glowed over a fourth called "Gratefully Yours." (Sequel: "Gratefully Yours" is the one which has been dropped from the picture!)

* * *

Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger (also composers for "Waikiki Wedding") are others who admit they're baffled by popular preferences in songs. From that picture they selected "Sweet Is the Word for You" as their best bet for a hit—and backed their selection with a $100 bet with a studio employe who maintained that "Blue Hawaii" would outsell it. They paid off, time proving them about 500 per cent wrong.

The same team did pieces for "The Big Broadcast of 1938" and picked "You Took the Words Right Out of My Heart" as their likeliest winner. The pet song clicked, all right, but the one that's played everywhere you go is the little regarded number called "Thanks for the Memory." This was a plot song—obviously written to bridge musically an important plot point in the story—and yet it was an instant click.

* * *

The team of M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl has produced many hits—and yet one they banked on heavily proved a dud. Plugged and exploited, "Ever Since Eve" was not a big one.

On the other hand, Harry Warren and Al Dubin thought nothing at all of a little number they rushed together for "Gold Diggers of 1935." There happened to be a spot for a tune, and no tune to fill it. Overnight, the prolific team turned out "Plenty of Money and You" and forgot about it—until the cash reports started coming in.

And then, of course, there was that "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen!"

* * *

Allen Jenkins had his parked outside the "Slight Case of Murder" stage the other day. The Jenkins station wagon is responsible for the comedian's newest film enterprise. Taking his family for a seaside excursion, Jenkins got interested in the lives and habits of the succulent abalone. He whipped out his miniature movie camera and now he's winding up his first "Allen Jenkins production," tentatively titled "The Love Life of the Abalone."

Parents Cause Girl Trouble

By VIRGINIA LEE

AH, ME, these parent-children problems that are offered to me to solve. Usually it is the children that put the questions up to me and want me to help them. Sometimes, however, it is the parents.

The great trouble is to know who is to blame. The young girl who has just written, signing herself WEEPING BLUES (isn't that expressive?) for instance. Her very long letter isn't to be published and it is quite complicated.

She tells of the trouble her parents caused her brother and sister when they married. Both marriages, however, she said were "must" weddings. And now they are trying to break off her love affair with her boy friend.

Well, my dear, I have said over and over in this column, that I do not think parents should interfere with their children's love affairs unless they are very sure they will result in unhappiness; and even then, it is pretty precarious business. They are more likely to precipitate matters than to help them.

And once the children are married, a hands off policy is decidedly the thing. The less parents interfere with young people the better. The latter should work out their own problems, and parents should stand in the background ready only to take a hand if they are appealed to by both sides and even then, very cautiously.

There seems to be something wrong with the picture of your home, anyhow. How come you all show such decided lack of control? It would seem that your parents have failed to instill self-restraint in you all when you were young, and now feel they must interfere with your choice of mates—both unwise proceedings.

I cannot give you much advice. I am afraid, Weeping Blues. You will have to wait until you finish school in June, anyhow, and I think you are wise to plan to wait until you are of age to wed. No use hating your parents. They are trying to do their duty as they see it, I presume, even though they seem mistaken to you and me. If you cannot persuade them that your boy friend is all right and you should be allowed to go with him, stick it out until you finish school, and then maybe you can go away from home to learn the trade you plan to take up, and maybe have more freedom.

Don't blame your parents and excuse yourself when you do wrong. You will be a great deal happier if you do what you know to be right.

SIMONE: If you cannot agree each to respect the other's religion and never, never to quarrel on account of it, better stay apart as you now are. The loneliness will grow less in time, and you each will meet some one else, so cheer up.

USING COLOR IN HOME

If you are timid about using color in your home, don't trust yourself. Lean on a good fabric, advises House Beautiful. For instance, you may find a clear and beautiful lemon yellow combined with a fruity wine shade and incidental touches of a good woody green. That can make a room. Relate all your subsequent shopping to this scheme. Take a sample of your material with you. Don't necessarily limit yourself to the colors of the fabric, but let everything you buy be harmonious.

The month of March is considered the best period for pruning grape vines in Massachusetts. If vines are pruned after April 1 there is likely to be some bleeding.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO KINDS OF HANDS

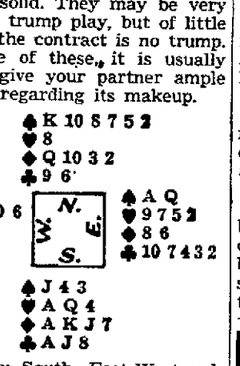
From a broad standpoint, there are two principal kinds of hands—those which are better suited to no trump play and those which are more adapted to suit contracts. The main distinguishing characteristic is the length of suits, especially long suits which are not solid. They may be very useful in trump play, but of little value if the contract is no trump. With one of these, it is usually wise to give your partner ample warning regarding its makeup.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding at all tables in a duplicate tournament began with South calling 1-Diamond and North responding with 1-Spade. The South players then bid 2-No Trump, North 3-Spades and South 3-No Trump.

Where the North players passed this bid, the contracts were defeated, as the opening lead was the heart J, and as two leads were necessary to clear the spades, the hearts were meanwhile set up.

The North players who correctly decided their hands were not suited to no trump play, bid 4-Diamonds over the 3-No Trump, and the South players took the contract to 4-Spades.

Played at this contract, success is assured, as there are only two spade tricks and one club off the hand.

Window shade springs can be rewound by inserting the flat end of the roller between the tines of a fork and turning.

One cup of prunes which have been soaked overnight, pitted, chopped and added to 1½ cups of bread crumbs makes a delicious stuffing for roast duck. Moisten the stuffing with cold water.

Advice On Correcting Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head, Dept. Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

MANY WHO read this column inform me that they clip it to send to, or take out a subscription to the paper containing it, for a relative whose paper does not carry it. Or they will write me for advice about some problem of a relative's family. And here is such a letter from a great-grandmother.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have read many of your answers to mothers and think they are good. I believe you have stated you would answer personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope were enclosed. So I am doing that in connection with a question I have regarding a great-grandson who is only three years old. The boy has a habit of sucking the thumb of his right hand, and at the same time, with his left hand fumbles with his private part. I notice he does this particularly at the time of wanting to go to sleep, or on waking while he is still drowsy. His little sister, nearly two, also sucks her thumb. Both were bottle babies. The mother, I think, has tried to break him by slapping his hand but without success. I know of another mother whose boy did this, who put rubber cord in his breeches, both at waist and bottom of legs. It worked, as she also put a cloth thumb stall on. If you will answer, I can send her the answer, as she lives in the country, but has faith in my findings of helpful suggestions. I have sent her others of your articles, and I do feel that something should be done. In so young a child, we would hardly call it masturbation, would we? However, it seems as if it would grow into that if not corrected."

Punishment No Cure.

Answer: Slapping or any other punishment won't cure such habits. You see, they are exercised as comforters, and therefore are the more likely to be exercised after disapproval or punishment. With thumb sucking, the good old-fashioned remedies of rough thumb-stalls (rougher the better), bitter substance on the thumb, mitts or cuffs, or similar devices often do work, but they work only when they do not vex the child and stir up resistance in him, and when, moreover, he can be won to co-operate. They are futile when he thinks them punishments. Hence, they usually work better with the very young child than the child over three or four. A toy which a child will cuddle in bed may be effective.

That young mother might get good results if she would work on herself instead of the child, trying to get more rest and relaxation, so she could show no emotion whatever about these habits, could be serene and move with poise and speak quietly. She should read to the child to quiet him and be more generous with affection toward him.

What is South's best play for 6-Diamonds, the spade Q being the opening lead?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

IT SEEMED an eternity that I sat mulling over the call for Dicky which had come from the voice of a drunken woman who was so insistent that he was in the hotel. But it was really less than five minutes by the mantel clock before a knock sounded, on my door, and with an unreasoning fear that I might have to face the intoxicated woman in person, I went to the hall door and call softly:

"Who is there?"

But subdued as was my voice, two people inside the apartment heard it, and almost as the answer came in the mellifluous tones of the hotel manager, Mary and Miss Whitlock, in dressing gowns and slippers, had ranged themselves beside me.

"It is I, John Milner," the hotel manager said. 'May I see you just a moment?"

They're With Her.

"Of course." I put my hand on the door, and looked questioningly at Dicky's winsome niece and the nurse, who showed no signs of retreating from their places beside me.

"I guess it won't kill him to see women in dressing gowns," Mary whispered belligerently. "He's probably seen many of 'em. And if he hasn't, it's just too bad for him, because he's going to see two now. We're in on this, whatever it is, aren't we, Miss Whitlock?"

The nurse nodded with a grim smile, and I opened the door to the suave presence of Mr. Milner, whose eyes showed a faint glint of amusement as he noted my bodyguard.

"Distressing Incident."

"I supose we might be called 'the three guardsmen'," I said, answering the amusement he was trying hard to conceal.

His smile flashed out unrestrained.

"You certainly are well protected," he commented, and I gestured toward the sitting room.

"Won't you come in and sit down?" I asked.

"For just a moment while I explain the distressing incident which has just occurred," he said, and something in his voice stiffened me to wary attention. It was an inflection which, to my stimulated imagination, meant an attempt to "pull the wool over my eyes."

I preceded him into the sitting room, Mary and Miss Whitlock close beside me. As we all sat down, Mr. Milner leaned forward impressively.

Madge Not Convinced.

"You cannot imagine how distressed I am that you should have been so annoyed," he began. "It all comes of a mistake in names. For several months we have had a guest named Glavan. He is a very nice chap, but he is separated from his wife, who, unfortunately, is addicted to drink. In fact—" Mr. Milner suddenly smiled and became colloquial, "she gets plastered regularly, and makes things lively for her husband. We have orders not to let her talk to him unless he agrees. We have a new night operator on tonight, and Mr. Glavan is out of the city. She did not talk distinctly, as you probably noted, and the operator put her on your room. I am so sorry. You may be sure such a contretemps will not occur again."

'It is perfectly all right," I found myself saying mechanically. But as Mr. Milner bowed himself out, I had all I could do not to call after him, "Do you think you can fool me with a flimsy story like that?"

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, March 12.

A rather significant day, with much materializing in the way of relieving old congestions to make way for high initiative and aggressiveness in putting over new projects, is forecast. The great danger of this is found in a tendency to tackle these new ventures with recklessness or impulsiveness. Try to meet hostility and opposition by calm methods and well-developed plans. There may be gratification in the private, social, domestic and romantic relations.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and constructive year, with the breaking up of old obstructions and stagnations. Definite stabilization of the affairs should attend the launching of major new projects, but without contention, disputes and rash or impetuous ways and means. Remain calm, placate enmity and count on friends. There may be much activity and pleasure in personal relations.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, aggressive, practical and constructive, fond of hard work and steadfast but inclined to be impulsive, ardent and tempestuous, although having a really friendly and kindly nature.

Use Bleach For Snow White Skin

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty.

SNOW WHITE, that dazzling heroine of our childhood, suddenly has reappeared before our older but still adoring eyes, and in her recent movie she lives up to every expectation.

The little dream princess has caused quite a flurry with her pale loveliness. The lucky ones who are just getting back from southern cruises and tropical holidays are not looking too kindly at their brown skins. As for those who have stayed at home, they still are more discontented. Nothing seems less attractive than the rather dirty gray look of last summer's remnants of tan.

So bleaching is the word for it, because everyone suddenly wants a little white body. This is an easy but slow attainment. It isn't expensive and it doesn't take much time each day, but it must be done conscientiously over a period of from two to three weeks. Of course the length of time depends largely on how big a dose of suntan you have had.

Lemon Juice Good.

Any quick working bleach that will turn the skin from bronze to white in one or two applications is obviously too strong for a merely human epidermis. So it's a good idea to begin well ahead of time to repair the ravages wrought by hours in the open.

Even if you are one who is planning to get a good tan again next summer, it will be fun to be femininely white for a month or so and then start on the summer's browning so as to be all one color.

One swell way to bring the skin back to a soft whiteness is to apply warm water and lemon juice night and morning. Use soft gauze pads. The solution should be half water and half lemon juice. Do not apply the pads until you have thoroughly cleansed the skin. Then keep them on for five minutes, relax and let nature take its course. Then rinse your face with cool water. Use this same method of getting "back to normal skin" treatment on the neck, arms and hands, to make the bleaching uniform. The hands, which are a little tougher, can have a slightly stronger solution. Take straight lemon juice and mix it with salt for good results.

After you have finished your daily bleaching regime, it's quite soothing to apply a cream or lotion. This will prevent the lemon from having a drying effect, and will take away any roughness that may be left from outdoor activities. Try to arrange to give yourself the nightly treatment just before retiring, then the skin lubricant can be left on overnight. Select a preparation which experience has taught you agrees with your particular skin. If you have no preference and want an old favorite, olive oil is grand. Smooth the lubricant into your face, neck and arms. How you will glory in your glowing whiteness!

Tygers Underdogs In Sandusky Game

However, Mansfield Fans Figure Murphymen Have Chance to Upset Dope Tonight as They Did Against Columbian.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

ALL ROADS lead to the northwest today as home town basketball enthusiasts followed the Tygers of Mansfield high school to Sandusky for the semi-final games in the Class A district tournament.

Coach Russ Murphy's surprise athletes are scheduled to tangle with the touted Bellevue Redmen at 8:30 p. m., and although listed as underdogs, the Tygers are accorded a better than outside chance to topple their heavily-favored foe by their followers.

While upstate experts can't possibly see how the smaller Tygers can win tonight's all-important game, Mansfield rooters point to the fact that the Men of Murphy were not supposed to have been capable of defeating Tiffin Columbian, either.

A suspicion that the momentum gained by the Tygers in their first two games might send them straight through the tournament is also evident in Mansfield.

Believed Stronger.

While Columbian was rated as a pre-tournament favorite, Bellevue is reputed to pack more class than the Tygers' first victim.

Mansfield's record does not compare with Bellevue's, but it is evident that the experts lose sight of the fact that the Tygers encountered a tougher schedule than the Redmen.

The worst defeat suffered by Mansfield was administered by Canton McKinley, and the margin was only seven points. Canton today is only one game removed from the state finals.

Akron West, another team expected to reach the state finals, trimmed the Tygers by only two points.

It is apparent that these facts were not considered in the pre-tournament dope. The favorites were established on how many games each team won, rather than the type of competition

Murphy, however, is satisfied that the Tygers were listed as "dark horses" rather than favorites this year. The team has not been burdened with a mental handicap, he explains.

The Tyger tactician is fully aware of the size of the task confronting his team tonight "If we get the breaks, we might win, the pessimistic coach stated.

Bellevue has won 17 out of 19 games, and Murphy contends that any team that can win that many games is dangerous

The Redmen will hold a physical edge as well as an advantage in experience. Mansfield may find it difficult to overcome these advantages on the Sandusky floor which has been somewhat of a "jinx" to Mansfield teams in the past.

The Bellevue lineup includes two players in Hime and Houle who won honorable mention on the Associated Press All-Ohio scholastic team

These two performers, along with Snyder, tall center, are expected to provide the chief worries for the Tygers

Ready for Game.

Mansfield is in splendid condition for the tussle, and Murphy plans to employ a starting lineup consisting of Jack Dugger and Tommy Scott, forwards; Elmer Dials center, and John Hallabrin and Jack Lyons, guards with Dave Shelley and Ike Smith in readiness for relief duty

The other semi-final game at 7:30 p. m. pits Ashland against Sandusky, and the Blue Streaks are favored because of their familiarity with the tournament court

Changes Anticipated In Moose Standings

Ohio Teams Dominate Week-end Schedule In Lodge Tourney at Meder Alleys.

DON'T bet that the scores compiled by the leaders in the Moose national bowling tournament on the opening shifts will survive the competition at the Meder Recreation alleys over the week-end.

Due to the full handicaps permitted in the tournament a flock of changes is anticipated Saturday and Sunday when Ohio teams dominate the schedule

All Events in Danger.

Not only are the changes anticipated in the five-man event, but also in the minor departments

The current leader in the five-man event is Moore's Recreation of Dearborn, Mich., which had a fair 2600 total boosted to 3067 by a big handicap.

Bill Govi, packing a handicap of 34 pins a game leads the singles with an even 700 while Allison and Willer of Kokomo Ind top the doubles with a 1295 bolstered by a 54-pin total handicap.

Twenty teams will attack the wooden pins this week-end, with all of the competitors from Ohio except one, Ft. Wayne will send one team.

Sends Light Teams.

The week-end shifts will be dominated by the Lorain lodge, which will send eight teams to compete Sunday. Four Mansfield teams are scheduled.

Other Ohio cities to be represented are Cuyahoga Falls, Collinwood, Mt. Vernon, Cambridge, Dayton and Conneaut.

Johnsville High Has A Frascella, Too.

Wooster's Franscella and Toledo's Chuckovits have nothing on Johnsville's Virgil Shaffer.

The Morrow county lad, despite a leg injury suffered early in the season, scored 396 points for Johnsville in the county Class B league this season. Shaffer, a senior, was named as a forward on the All-county league team.

Rex Billiards were the champions of the Senior White basketball league today.

The Cuemen annexed the crown last night at the Friendly House by defeating the runner-up Benny Hi-Notes outfit, 22 to 17, to bring the league to a close. The new champions finished the season with 13 wins and two defeats.

After battling to a 7-all deadlock in the opening stanza, the Billiards began increasing their lead and at the halfway mark were leading, 12 to 9. Benny's club tried desperately to overcome the advantage, but its chances faded in the last frame as the champions outscored them, 6 to 3. The Cuemen went into the final chapter with a 16 to 14 lead.

Mike Wentz dropped in nine points to set the individual pace, and Brandt followed with eight. Joe Wentz lead the losers with five.

The Blue Goose club smothered the Mansfield Athletic Supply team, 39 to 21, and the Dinger Independents edged the Zeigler Independents, 35 to 32, in the other tilts.

Sohioans Test Yuncker Team

Ontario to Try to Stop Sports String Saturday.

The task of halting the high-scoring Yuncker Sports combine falls on the shoulders of the unbeaten Henry Sohioans Saturday when the clubs tangle at Ontario high at 8 p. m

The Sports, who chalked up their 13th straight victory by defeating the Elks club in City Class A league competition Wednesday night, will be weakened considerable for the important melee

Bob Bogantz, former Ontario high star, who has played under the Yuncker team's colors this season, will perform with the Sohioans.

The Sohioans defeated the touted Indians of Fostoria in their last appearance to register their seventh consecutive triumph

A preliminary attraction at 7 p. m will pit the Ontario E-Hys against the North Electric club of Galion.

SMITH FAR IN FRONT

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.—(AP)—The boys who play golf for money, today virtually conceded first place in the $3,000 Hollywood open to Horton Smith He started today's 36-hole grind six strokes in front with a score of 131.

FARR IN BAER'S COMEBACK PATH

NEW YORK—(AP)—Max Baer and Tommy Farr pop out of the files of the "ho, hum" department and tangle for 15 rounds or less in Madison Square Garden's ring tonight.

Tommy is a 7 to 5 favorite to repeat his 1937 London victory over the playboy "papa," but the real heroes of the affair undoubtedly will be those unsuspecting members of the fistic faithful who sit and watch the thing. Promoter Mike Jacobs figures some 17,000 cash customers will contribute to a gross gate of $75,000—but he'll settle for less.

Max, you remember, used to be the world heavyweight champion. Farr is the British empire titleholder.

Since coming to this country several months ago, Tommy's only victory has been for his pocketbook. He collected $60,000 for losing a 15-round decision to Joe Louis, and cut himself another neat piece of change for finishing on the short end against James Braddock.

There's talk that the winner of tonight's go will get a crack at Louis or Schmeling.

FIGHT TO BE AIRED

The Max Baer-Tommy Farr fight will be broadcast from the ringside in New York City at 10 tonight via WJZ-NBC.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

OFFICIAL averages of the Ohio State league released today at Harry Smith's headquarters in Columbus differ little from the unofficial figures in the batting department.

Mgr. Dewey Stover, who won the league batting title, is credited with a .383 average in the circuit president's figures, two points under the unofficial listing, and Johnny Barrett, runner-up to the Mansfield Red Sox pilot, had his average boosted five points to .378.

Outside of these differences, the official figures compare very favorably with the averages compiled regularly during the season by the Chicago statisticians.

Chief interest in the official averages is held in the fielding department, which the Chicago figure computers did not tally.

Lee, Patras Win Fielding Titles.

MANSFIELD players won the fielding championships in two positions.

Roy Lee, who committed only three errors, tops the first basemen with a .993 percentage, and Steve Patras, guilty of only three misplays, leads the gardeners with a .978 mark.

Lee

Chappie Geygan, Marion manager, is in front of the second baseman, Buck Harris, also of Marion, third base leader; Buddy Kritch of Findlay, ranks above the shortstops, and 'Musillino' Vitale, Findlay, leads the catchers.

George Biershenk, who finished the season at second for the champion Red Sox, compiled one of the leading percentages at second after he took over Andy Gilbert's duties. Gilbert, on the other hand, was charged with 28 bobbles, and sports the poorest fielding mark of any of the regulars at that position.

Biershenk and Lonnie Haulbrook, who shared third base, are listed near the bottom in the hot corner figures, while Steve Vesek rates second to Kritch at shortstop. Vesek committed less errors than any short fielder and finished 10 percentage points behind Kritch.

Barrett is second in the garden fielding figures, with Stover only a couple of notches below The Mansfield outfield trio was charged with only 17 errors

Frank Spartichino and Fenton Beaman, who formed the best catching corps in the circuit, rank at the bottom position in the receiving records

Heath Most Effective Hurler.

ONLY one Mansfield hurler ranks among the leading ten in effectiveness Lefty Heath heads the Red Sox rifiers in eighth place with an earned run average of 3.40 George Schneidmuller is next listed at 3.79

Hal Cheney permitted only a fraction more than one run per game, but he did not make enough appearances to receive recognition in the pitching averages

Cleveland Edged In Contract Fight

Loses Bill Nowak to Giants; Keltner Suffers Injury In First Spring Game.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(U.P.)—Bad luck today continued to dog the trail of the Cleveland Indians as the club temporarily lost the services of its star rookie infielder, Ken Keltner, and was edged in its contract battle for the services of Bill Nowak by the New York Giants.

Keltner was struck just below the left elbow by a pitched ball in the seventh inning of yesterday's practice contest with the New Orleans Pelicans. He was forced out of action and the left hand was partially paralyzed.

Injury Not Serious.

Trainer Max (Lefty) Weisman did not believe the injury serious, but Keltner will not leave with the club tonight for Lake Charles, La., where exhibition contests will be played over the week-end with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Acting upon a plea of Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants, Judge W. G. Branham, czar of minor league baseball, ordered Nowak to report to the Jersey City club, a Giant farm.

Nowak allegedly signed a contract with the Indians' farm team at Springfield, O., but the agreement was never filed.

Later he was signed by Jersey City under an assumed name. The 19-year-old Detroit youngster opened the spring training drills with the Giants and then for the past three days worked out here with the Indians.

Branham said in his ruling there was no record to show any team other than Jersey City entiled to Nowak's services.

Weak at Plate.

The practice contest yesterday was called at the end of the ninth with the score tied at 4 to 4. The Indians secured only two hits and looked extremely weak at the plate. Otherwise the showing of the rookies was up to a high standard.

Mickey Cochrane Ready To Don Mask and Mitt.

LAKELAND, Fla.—(U.P.)—With the permission of Owner Walter Briggs, Mickey Cochrane, Detroit manager, may return to active catching duty. After Cochrane was "beaned" by Bump Hadley of the Yanks last year, Briggs said he would never permit him to catch again. But Cochrane has recovered competely from the double skull fracture that threatened his life and feels the urge to play. He has been working out daily and is ready to don mask and mitt if Briggs will give permission.

ENCOUNTER STRONG FOE

Yuncker Sports Meet Galion In Headline Game on Carnival Card Tuesday.

Just how tough the leading City Class A league teams really are will be determined Tuesday night when the circuit presents a basketball carnival at Mansfield high.

Two out-of-town aggregations and the Richland county coaches' quintet have been secured to furnish the opposition for the City league clubs in the three-game card.

"Grudge" Battle.

One of the affairs is expected to develop into a real "grudge" battle.

The game tosses the classy Yuncker Sports outfit, present leaders in the City league, against the dangerous Globe Clothiers of Galion at 9 p. m.

The clubs tangled a couple of weeks ago in Galion and the Yuncker team had to come from behind to keep its record intact. It was Galion's only defeat.

Galion has added Alex Kish, former Wittenberg ace, and Tom George, erstwhile Ohio State star, to the lineup.

Other members of the club include, Johnny Burnison, Galion high cage coach, who played with Heidelberg; Harmon of Denison and Neal, Hubley and Goldsmith, former Galion high players.

Electries Face Coaches.

Tuesday's program will be opened at 7 p. m. with a tilt between the high-scoring Richland county Coaches and Westinghouse Electrics, and will be followed by the Bliss College-Elks affair.

The regular City league admission prices of 10 cents will be charged.

LOST LADY + + +

By GEORGE E. HOLT
(Copyright 1938)

CHAPTER XV

"Well, well, well," said old Charlie Kilbourne. "This is fine. This is perfectly swell. I haven't had a fight since Hector was a pup. This is real hospitality, real Mexican hospitality, Vicente. Got a spare gun or two?"

"I hope to tell you, Charlie. Help yourself. In the library. There's a spot of bourbon there, too."

"I'll go with you, Dad. And tell you a few other things you don't know. Business has been picking up lately." He took his father by the arm and they entered the house. "Almost back to the 1929 peak," Murray laughed. "And you've come just in time to get in on the ground floor."

"I've been pretty lucky all my life, son." He poured himself a small drink, and sat down to listen. "Now shoot the works."

* * *

Murray told him. He told of how Pablo Sanchez, a marihuana cigaret addict who sometimes worked at Rancho La Luz, had been sent to Tijuana by Don Ponce Robles with note for Juan Gomez and had overheard Gomez, Red Vasquez and others plotting to raid Don Vicente's rancho, drive off his cattle and seize his automobiles and valuables.

Murray told him of the seemingly drunken Pablo, in singing "La Paloma" had interpolated a warning against Murray's going to the Cafe Mexico City in answer to a note written by Dolores. That she did not want him to come regardless of what the note said, was what he sang.

Then Murray told of how Pablo had gotten rid of the driver of the car in which two fake policemen intended to take him and Jose for a last "ride" after "arresting" them in the cafe, and had driven to the police station instead. And of how the impostors leaped from the car amid a hail of police bullets.

Murray also related how this same Pablo, while Jose's cousin Manuel was in the Cafe Porforio Diaz, had mumbled drunkenly of Red Vasquez's detailed plan for raiding Rancho La Luz.

By the time he had finished, night had come, and Don Vicente appeared to say that it was time for "battle stations."

"Raids are not usually made until midnight or later," he explained. "But from what I've heard of this Red Vasquez gentleman, he doesn't play the game according to Hoyle. So it may be that he will pull his party early, as a surprise."

"I have a hunch that it will be surprise to him to find dad, Jose and myself on the job," said Murray. "And that will be just too bad, eh, Jose?" He turned to the man who had just appeared in the doorway.

"I theenk so, Don Murray," said that one. "Yes, I theenk eet weel be one damn surprise like—w'at you say?—w'en you seet on thee tack, eh? I betcha. Now I am going across thee valley to see w'at I can see."

Don Vicente nodded, and Jose went away.

* * *

Mercedes joined the men now as they were about to go to their respective posts, but she had nothing to say, and seemed to take her father's warning not to leave the house as a matter of course. And to turn the light out.

But when the men had left the room, the girl quickly found a holstered six-gun and hung it around her waist with a belt that was also a bandolier, carrying a hundred rounds of cartridges. She also picked up a small rifle, a 30-30, made sure it was loaded, and found another bandolier of shells for it. The rifle and shell she placed near the doorway, on a small table. Then she turned out the light and sat down in a big chair near a window overlooking the valley, to wait.

Outside, by the light of the pale moon, she could see her father's forces going to "battle stations," as Don Vicente had called it. The haciedna was on a rise, south of the small shadow valley, and she could look over the barns and corrals on the slope toward the north. Her window was open, and she could hear low-voiced commands.

The girl studied the scene for a few minutes, then rose and brought the rifle and shells to the window, and resumed her seat.

She waited.

At last, far to the north, she saw a flash of a car's headlights. Just a flash, and then darkness again.

A little later a faint whistle, from a long distance.

A shadow rose in front of the window, and Murray spoke to her.

"They're coming," he said. "So you get away from that window. Go to the other side of the house. And don't worry; they won't get within a hundred yards of the hacienda. But their bullets might, so beat it."

"All right, Murray," said the girl, humbly. "But you—you take care of yourself."

She walked away from the window. The shadow disappeared. And then the girl swiftly returned to her place, picked up the rifle and, kneeling, rested the gun upon the window-sill.

* * *

Watching, the girl thought she could see bands of moving figures on the distant hillside. And not far away she could hear Murray tell Don Ponce to guard the house entrance.

Abruptly the headlights of two cars flashed there. Came forward, to the barb-wire fence at the foot of the slope. Stopped, their lights focussed upon the hacienda.

At the same time a whistle shrilled again, yells followed, and moving shadows were now distinctly visible. Shadows moving toward the fence. Cutting in. Moving up the slope.

The girl cocked the rifle, took aim.

The report crashed through the night—and one of the headlights went out.

Again she fired, and another light faded.

And then pandemonium broke loose.

The raiders began firing swiftly, and their fire was returned from three different angles. On their right and left flanks were men whom Don Vicente had posted there, and in front of them Don Vicente himself, Murray, Murray's father and Jose guarded the hacienda.

"Who broke those lights?" Don Vicente called from where he lying. "Be careful; some dawn fool is firing over our heads."

"Search me," Murray replied. But Jose chuckled.

"I theenk," he said, "that eet ees a senorita w'at I see shooting from thee window." He leveled his rifle, sighted and fired at a shadowy figure a hundred yards away. The shadow raised its arms, whirled and fell down.

Suddenly the two remaining lights on the raiders' cars—they were the trucks brought to take away the loot—were extinguished. Not by gunfire.

"That means a rush," said Charlie Kilbourne. "They don't want to get in front of their own lights."

"All right, Murray," said Don Vicente now. "Give 'em the lights. And get that fool girl away from that window. The house will be peppered."

Murray jumped to his feet, no longer revealed by the raiders' headlights. Ran to the house, to the window where Mercedes knelt, rifle ready.

"Don't shoot," he called. "It's me—Murray."

With that he climbed through the window, picked Mercedes up bodily, carried her into the next room, struggling.

"Be your age!" Murray stormed "Want to get shot? Don't be a fool. I'm going to turn on the floodlights."

Ungently he deposited the panting girl on a couch, went swiftly away, paying no attention to her anger. And a moment later the electric floodlights on the roof of the hacienda very much surprised the eyes of Red Vasquez's raiders.

"Let 'em have it now!" shouted Kilbourne, senior. "Give 'em hell!"

* * *

The rifles began to pump steadily at targets which were plainly revealed by the searchlights. From three sides bullets were poured against the invaders.

But Red Vasquez was no coward — and his men were much more afraid of him than of any opponent they might have.

"Forward! Forward. Rush 'em!" he shouted And, leading them, a pistol blazing in each hand, the boss of the Tijuana underworld made straight for where his principal antagonists were lying pumping the levers of their guns. A man fell, kicking wildly. Another whirled and was down. Still they came on, desperately, the deadly light in their eyes.

And then there was no more light.

* * *

Don Vicente exclaimed in surprise and anger. Jose cursed. This was bad business.

"Where's Murray?" Don Vicente shouted. "Murray!"

No answer.

"Back to the house. Quick!" commanded Don Vicente. "Something—wrong."

He sprang to his feet, led the way, followed tempestuously by the other two.

"Take cover inside, and hold 'em!" shouted Don Vicente. "I—the lights."

He ran to the switch, passing Don Ponce, calling "Murray! Murray, where are you? Mercedes!"

There was no answer, but his hand found the switch, threw it. Again the floodlights blazed, and the rifles began to crack merrily.

"Hay! Don Vicente! Quick!" It was Charlie Kilbourne's voice.

Don Vicente ran to rejoin his friends. Found them staring at a picture the floodlights revealed.

Murray Kilbourne, disarmed, was being forced away at pistol point by Red Vasquez.

Already he was near the line of the besiegers.

Vasquez turned and grinned. He was safe, he knew. Any bullet from a high-powered rifle hitting him in the back would go right through him—and kill Murray. And not even the best shot would risk trying to get him with a pistol at that distance. Not if they valued Murray's life.

"So!" said Don Vicente. "So! That's the answer!"

All looked, holding their fire now.

Mercedes—where she had come from none could tell—Mercedes dashed into the light, straight at Red Vasquez and his prisoner. Pistol in hand she reached them. She raised the gun, covering Vasquez.

And then, with a little cry, she lowered her arm, swayed and fell.

PRISONS SCORED ON EASY LABOR

San Quentin's Convicts Don't Get Physically or Mentally Tired, Officer Says.

(By United Press)

FRESNO, Cal.—Increased physical labor for jail and prison inmates as a corrective measure in California penal institutions was recomended by District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda county at a Peace officers association meeting here.

"California's penal system is a failure as far as the rehabilitation of criminals is concerned," Warren told assembled officers.

"Most of our prisoners spend their time either in solitude or in talk and few are rehabilitated," Warren said. "They come out more anti-social, knowing more about crime than when they went in and are more of a problem to police and law enforcement agencies."

The 6,000 inmates in San Quentin prison do not have enough work to make them physically or mentally tired, he said.

Warren suggested employment of prisoners in road building projects and furniture manufacture for public buildings.

Warren pointed out that organized kidnaping has practically been abolished in the United States and that organized crime of other types has been largely abolished. Gang murders have been greatly reduced by legislation of a helpful nature and a closer working between law enforcement agencies, he added.

District Attorney Dan F. Conway defended the state parole system and said records show that only a few ex-convicts get into difficulties while on parole.

Conway said incorrigible prisoners should be segregated.

MOTOR TAXES

NEW YORK—(INS)—Motor car owners pay more in gasoline, oil and license plates taxes than manufacturers receive annually in selling new cars, according to a recent estimate. The annual tax bill of motorists is estimated at $1,320,000,000.

WISHING HERSELF TO BE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THE QUEEN HAS HER HUNTSMAN TAKE SNOW WHITE AWAY TO KILL HER. HOWEVER, SNOW WHITE'S BEAUTY AND TENDERNESS MELT HIM. THE HUNTSMAN RELEASES HER AND BIDS HER ESCAPE IN THE FOREST. THERE SHE WANDERS, TERRIFIED BY STRANGE SHAPES, UNTIL SHE FALLS EXHAUSTED.

We can imagine that if Snow White and the prince lived today, and the locale were Mansfield he would woo her with

SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas REFRIGERATOR

But as usual with anything Dopey would do or make, the new 1938 Servel Electrolux Gas Refrigerator is a gem of the most up-to-date manufacture, both in PURCHASE PRICE AND ECONOMY IN USE. Before you buy any refrigerator ... gas permanent supply ... no moving parts to wear out. The most ... is not in the market today and ... gas refrigerator.

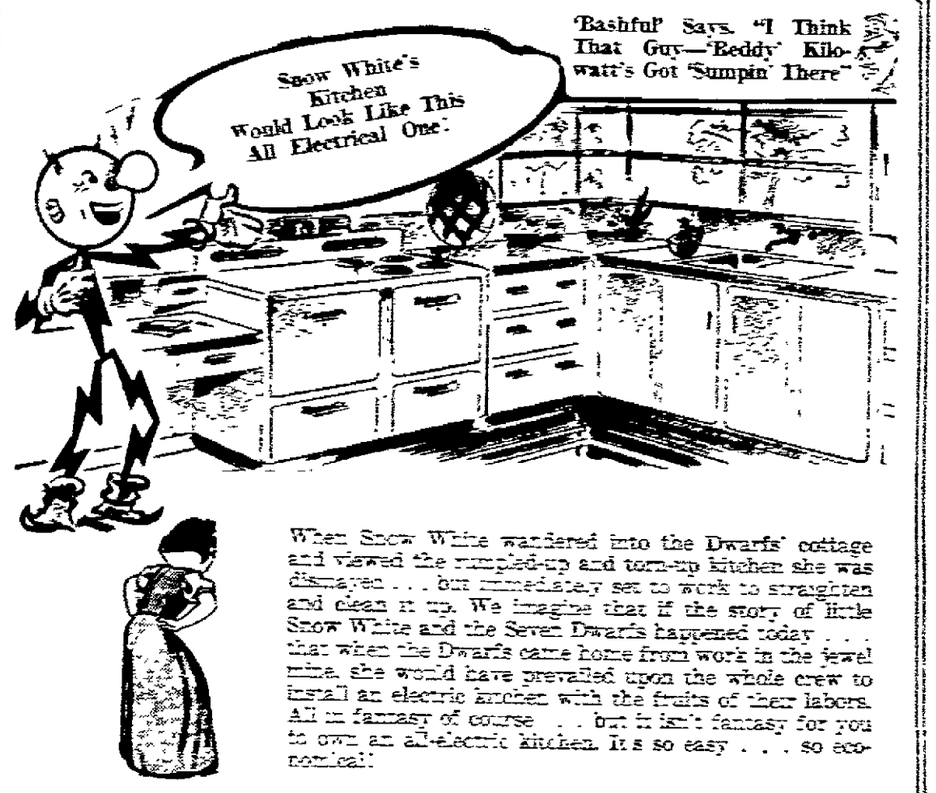
GAS DOESN'T COST ... IT PAYS!



'Bashful' Says, "I Think That Guy—'Beddy' Kilowatt's Got 'Sumpin' There"
Snow White's Kitchen Would Look Like This All Electrical One!

When Snow White wandered into the Dwarfs' cottage and viewed the rumpled-up and torn-up kitchen she was dismayed . . . but immediately set to work to straighten and clean it up. We imagine that if the story of little Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs happened today . . . that when the Dwarfs came home from work in the jewel mine, she would have prevailed upon the whole crew to install an electric kitchen with the fruits of their labors. All in fantasy of course . . . but it isn't fantasy for you to own an all-electric kitchen. It's so easy . . . so economical!

Visit our Westinghouse Model Kitchen. Then let us prepare for you a plan and estimate for such a model kitchen in your own home. You will be surprised how economical it is to have.
